Neoliberalism boldly proposes that neoliberalism strategically co-opts traditional ethics to ideologically and structurally strengthen capitalism. It produces the ethical capitalist subject who is personally responsible for making their society, workplace, and even their lives more ethical in the face of an immoral but seemingly permanent free market. Rather than altering our morality, neoliberalism individualizes ethics, making us personally responsible for dealing with and resolving its moral failings. In doing so, individuals end up perpetuating the very market system that they morally oppose and feel powerless to ultimately change. This analysis reveals the complex and paradoxical way capitalism is currently shaping us as ethical subjects. People are increasingly asked to ethically save capitalism both collectively and personally. This can range from the moral responsibility to politically accept austerity following the financial crisis to the willingness of employees to sacrifice their time and energy to make their neoliberal organizations more humane to the efforts by individuals to contribute to their family and communities despite the pressures of a frenetic global business environment. Neoliberalism thus uses our ethics against us, relying on our good nature and sense of personal responsibility to reduce its human cost in practice. Ironically,
