Although the recommended program is directed primarily at NASA and the National Science Foundation for action, the report also recommends actions by other federal agencies especially the parts of the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration charged with the day to day operational forecast of space weather. In addition to the recommendations included in this summary, related recommendations are presented in this report.

Extending Science National Academies of Sciences, Engineering, and Medicine, Division on Engineering and Physical Sciences, Space Studies Board, Committee on NASA Science Mission Extensions, 2017-01-29. NASA operates a large number of space science missions, approximately three quarters of which are currently in their extended operations phase. They represent not only a majority of operational space science missions but a substantial national investment and vital national assets. They are tremendously scientifically productive, making many of the major discoveries that are reported in the media and that rewrite textbooks. Extending Science: NASA's Space Science Mission Extensions and the Senior Review Process evaluates the scientific benefits of missions extensions, the current process for extending missions, the current biennial requirement for senior reviews of mission extensions, the balance between starting new missions and extending operating missions, and potential innovative cost reduction proposals for extended missions, and makes recommendations based on this review. The Budget of the United States Government United States, 2004.
