Schizophrenia: A View into the Mechanisms of Madness? Randolph Blake,Steven Silverstein, Brian P. Keane,Michael Green, Szabolcs Kéri,2015-05-11 Research on visual perception in schizophrenia has a long history However it is only recently that it has been included in mainstream efforts to understand the cognitive neuroscience of the disorder and to assist with biomarker and treatment development e g the NIMH CNTRICS and RDoC initiatives Advances in our understanding of visual disturbances in schizophrenia can tell us about both specific computational and neurobiological abnormalities and about the widespread computational and neurobiological abnormalities in the illness of which visual disturbances constitute well studied replicable low level examples Importantly far from being a passive sensory registration process visual perception is active inferential and hypothesis generating and therefore can provide excellent examples of breakdowns in general brain functions in schizophrenia Despite progress made in understanding visual processing disturbances in schizophrenia many challenges exist and many unexplored areas are in need of examination For example the directional relationships between perceptual and cognitive disturbances e g in attention memory executive function predictive coding remain unclear in many cases as do links with symptoms including visual hallucinations The effect of specific visual disturbances on multisensory integration in schizophrenia has also not been explored In addition few studies of vision in schizophrenia have used naturalistic stimuli including real world objects and almost no studies have examined processing during interaction with objects or visual exploration which can provide important data on functioning of the perception for action pathway Relatedly studies of visual processing in schizophrenia have also not been conducted within contexts that include emotional stimulation and the presence of reinforcers characteristics of many real world situations and the consequences of this are likely to be an incomplete view of how and when perception is abnormal in the condition An additional important area involves treatment of visual disturbances in schizophrenia Two major questions regarding this are 1 can visual processing be improved in cases where it is impaired and by what types of interventions affecting which cognitive and neurobiological mechanisms and 2 what are the clinical and functional benefits of improving specific visual functions in people with schizophrenia Other important and understudied questions concern 1 the extent to which indices of visual functioning can serve as biomarkers such as predictors of relapse treatment response and or recovery 2 the potential role of visual functioning in diagnosing and predicting illness 3 the extent to which some visual perception disturbances are diagnostically specific to schizophrenia and 4 the extent to which visual disturbances are truly manifestations of disease as opposed to aspects of normal variation that in combination with disease serves to modify the clinical presentation This Frontiers Research Topic explores some of these and other issues facing this exciting interface between vision science and schizophrenia research We include papers that span the entire range of different Frontiers paper types including those that are data driven using psychophysics electroencephalography neuroimaging computational and animal models and other methods reviews hypotheses theories opinion methods areas of impact and historical perspectives Modeling of Visual Cognition, Body Sense, Motor Control and Their Integrations Hong Qiao, Li Hu, 2017-04-25 The interdisciplinary studies between neuroscience and information science have greatly promoted the development of these two fields The achievements of these studies can help humans understand the essence of biological systems provide computational platforms for biological experiments and improve the intelligence and performance of the algorithms in information science This research topic is focused on the computational modeling of visual cognition body sense motor control and their integrations Firstly the modeling and simulation of vision and body sense are achieved by 1 understanding neural mechanism underlying sensory perception and cognition and 2 mimicking accordingly the structures and mechanisms of their signal propagation pathways The achievement of this procedure could provide neural findings for better encoding and decoding visual and somatosensory perception of humans and help robots or systems build humanoid robust vision body sensing and various emotions Secondly the modeling and simulation of the motor system of the primate are achieved by mimicking the coordination of bones muscles and joints and the control mechanisms of the neural system in the brain and spinal cord This procedure could help robots achieve fast robust and accurate manipulations and be used for safe human computer interaction Finally by integrating them more complete and intelligent systems robots could be built to accomplish various tasks self adaptively and automatically

Cognitive deficits in schizophrenia and other neuropsychiatric disorders: Convergence of preclinical and clinical evidence Ales Stuchlik, Tomiki Sumiyoshi, 2015-10-23 Neuropsychiatric diseases such as schizophrenia Alzheimer's disease and etc represent a serious medical and socioeconomic problems These diseases are often accompanied by impairments of cognitive function e.g. abstract thinking decision making attention and several types of memory Such deficits significantly disrupt quality of life and daily functioning of patients Cognitive deficits in neuropsychiatric diseases are associated with alterations of brain morphology and function and are often resistant to therapeutic interventions In schizophrenia and related disorders cognitive deficits are also defined as endophenotypes i e measurable phenotypes linking these diseases with discrete heritable and reproducible traits This points to the importance of elucidating these endophenotypes in translational studies Animal models may not mimic the full spectrum of clinical symptoms but may act as analogies of particular behaviors or other pathological outcomes They are useful to search for the etiology of particular psychiatric illnesses and novel therapeutics Moreover several behavioral tests to measure cognitive performance in rodents and other species have been implemented The primary focus of the present topic is to provide up to date information on cognitive deficits of neuropsychiatric disorders such as schizophrenia This Research Topic also delineates future directions for translational studies aimed at developing novel treatments interventions of cognitive disturbances

Medical Instrument Design and Development Claudio Becchetti, Alessandro Neri, 2013-05-20 This book explains all of the stages involved in developing medical devices from concept to medical approval including system engineering bioinstrumentation design signal processing electronics software and ICT with Cloud and e Health development Medical Instrument Design and Development offers a comprehensive theoretical background with extensive use of diagrams graphics and tables around 400 throughout the book The book explains how the theory is translated into industrial medical products using a market sold Electrocardiograph disclosed in its design by the GammaCardio Soft manufacturer The sequence of the chapters reflects the product development lifecycle Each chapter is focused on a specific University course and is divided into two sections theory and implementation The theory sections explain the main concepts and principles which remain valid across technological evolutions of medical instrumentation The Implementation sections show how the theory is translated into a medical product The Electrocardiograph ECG or EKG is used as an example as it is a suitable device to explore to fully understand medical instrumentation since it is sufficiently simple but encompasses all the main areas involved in developing medical electronic equipment Key Features Introduces a system level approach to product design Covers topics such as bioinstrumentation signal processing information theory electronics software firmware telemedicine e Health and medical device certification Explains how to use theory to implement a market product using ECG as an example Examines the design and applications of main medical instruments Details the additional know how required for product implementation business context system design project management intellectual property rights product life cycle etc Includes an accompanying website with the design of the certified ECG product <http://www.gammacardiosoft.it/book> Discloses the details of a marketed ECG Product from GammaCardio Soft compliant with the ANSI standard AAMI EC 11 under open licenses GNU GPL Creative Commons This book is written for biomedical engineering courses upper level undergraduate and graduate students and for engineers interested in medical instrumentation device design with a comprehensive and interdisciplinary system perspective

Forthcoming Books Rose Army, 1998-06 North Carolina Linking Study

Northwest Evaluation Association, 2014 Recently the Northwest Evaluation Association NWEA completed a study to connect the scale of the North Carolina State End of Grade EOG Testing Program used for North Carolina's mathematics and reading assessments with NWEA's Rausch Interval Unit RIT scale Information from the state assessments was used in a study to establish performance level scores on the RIT scale that would indicate a good chance of success on these tests To perform the analysis we linked together state test and NWEA test results for a sample of 18 730 North Carolina students who completed both exams in the spring of 2013 the term in which the EOG is administered For the spring season labeled current season an Equipercentile method was used to estimate the RIT score equivalent to each state performance level For fall labeled prior season we determined the percentage of the population within the selected study group that performed at each level on the state test and found the equivalent percentile ranges within the NWEA dataset to estimate the cut scores For example if 40% of the study group population in grade 3 mathematics performed below the proficient level on the state test we would find the RIT score that would be equivalent to the 40th percentile for the study population this would not be the same as the 40th percentile in the NWEA norms This RIT score would be the estimated point on the NWEA RIT scale that would be equivalent to the minimum score for proficiency on the state test Documentation about this method can be found on our website Table Sets 1 and 2 show the best estimate of the minimum RIT equivalent to each state performance level for same season spring and prior season fall RIT scores These tables can be used to identify students who may need additional help to perform well on these tests Table Sets 3 and 4 show the estimated probability of a student receiving a proficient score on the state assessment based on that student's RIT score These tables can be used to assist in identifying students who are not likely to pass these assessments thereby increasing the probability that intervention strategies will be planned and implemented These tables can also be useful for identifying target RIT score objectives likely to correspond to successful or proficient performance on the state test Table 5 shows the correlation coefficients between Measured Academic Performance MAP and the state test in each grade These statistics show the degree to which MAP and the state test are linearly related with values at or near 1.0 suggesting a perfect linear relationship and values near 0.0 indicating no linear relationship Table 6 shows the percentages of students at each grade and within each subject whose status on the state test i.e. whether or not the student met standards was accurately predicted by their MAP performance and using the estimated cut scores within the current study This table can be used to understand the predictive validity of MAP with respect to the EOG
