Giving Space to African Voices Zehlia Babaci-Wilhite, 2014-08-07 This book sets out to bring voices of the South to the debate on localization of education and makes the case that it should be considered a right in education Despite all the scientifically based evidence on the improved quality of education through the use of a local language and local knowledge English as a language of instruction and Western knowledge based curriculum continue to be used at all educational levels in many developing nations This means that in many African countries the goal of rights to education is becoming increasingly remote let alone that of rights in education With this understanding and with the awareness of the education challenges of millions of children throughout Africa the authors argue that local curriculum through local languages needs to be valued and to be preserved and that children need to be prepared for the world in a language that promotes understanding The authors make a clear case that policy makers are in a position to work towards a quality education for all as part of a more comprehensive right based approach We owe it to the children of the South to offer the best quality education possible in order to achieve social justice

PAINS IN LOVE Shola Azeez Oyeyinka,2014 The spirit of the Onigba Park has just begun to show their head once again The interpretation of love is a mystery to many of them in Iyatan and despite how silent it was in the other side of the world fate has made it a battle between love and hate life and death Knowledge is the only solution But who there will challenge the interpretation of fate The battle across the heaven was not ordinary to separate the guise But love just love is once again the challenging memory of time

Bring Back Our Girls Joe Parkinson,Drew Hinshaw,2021-03-02 A 2021 Daily Telegraph Book of the Year Had me gripped from the outset Fergal Keane Everyone should read the testimonies of the Chibok girls who survived the capture Malala In the spring of 2014 an American hip hop producer unwittingly triggered an online hurricane with a quickly thumbed tweet featuring a four word demand BringBackOurGirls The hashtag called for the release of 276 Nigerian schoolgirls who d been kidnapped by a little known Islamic terrorist sect called Boko Haram Within hours the campaign had been joined by millions including some of the world s most recognizable people Oprah Winfrey Pope Francis David Cameron Kim Kardashian and Michelle Obama Their tweets launched an army of would be liberators American soldiers and drones Swiss diplomats spies and glory hunters into an obscure conflict in a remote part of Nigeria that had barely begun to use the internet But when hostage talks and military intervention failed the schoolgirls were forced to take survival into their own hands As the days in captivity dragged into years they became witnesses and often victims of unspeakable brutality that they chronicled in secret diaries Many of the girls were Christians who refused to take the one easier path offered to them converting their captors extremist creed Bring Back Our Girls is an urgent and engrossing work of investigative journalism that unfolds across four continents from the remote forests of northern Nigeria to the White House from Khartoum safe houses to gilded hotel lobbies in the Swiss Alps It plumbs the promise and peril of an era whose politics are fuelled by the power of hashtag advocacy and at its centre stand some exceptionally courageous and resourceful young women

The Farfaru Journal of Multi-disciplinary Studies,2014 State-building Interventions in Post-Conflict Liberia Susanne Mulbah,2017-09-27 Post conflict Liberia has been subjected to extensive international state building at some point hosting the largest and one of the longest UN peacekeeping missions in the world and inflow of aid that exceeds in multiples the GDP In order to understand the international state building efforts in Liberia it is pertinent to reflect them against the extractive and predatory nature of the Liberian republic and the central role natural resources exploitation and plantations have played in accommodating transnational interest in the country's abundant natural resources and fertile land. This book focuses on the political economy of Liberian state building and in particular the question of the governance of natural resources. By combining a historical perspective and ethnographic knowledge, the author examines a number of interrelated questions: How was access to the state distributed in Liberian state building? How are those to be governed and their representation included in political economic decision making and more particularly in decisions over natural resources governance? This book will be of interest to students and scholars of state building, international development, African political science, and political economy.
