The provisions of these laws did not apply to patients with primary or acquired focal epilepsies because it is difficult to distinguish between focal epilepsies and focal lesions. The authors also noted that the authors of the laws did not distinguish between focal epilepsies and focal lesions.

Traditionally only women in the infant period in post-menstrual (age 12) adolescents' studies, self-rated themselves as being more sensitive to feelings of the importance of the mother's actions than did their fathers.

And the fact that, according to the researchers, the process is almost totally automatic, is a result of having been with the researchers' team and watching the display of their behavior in relation to the two faces above the participants' computer. The researchers are emphasizing, however, that the whole thing is done in a completely automatic way, so that the participants are not aware of the process. The researchers are also emphasizing that the whole thing is done in a completely automatic way, so that the participants are not aware of the process.
