The World's Oldest Recruit A Fictitious Memoir:

The Hero of No Fiction, Or, Memoirs of Francis Barnett, the Lefevre of "No Fiction" Francis Barnett, 1823 The Rise of the Memoir Alex Zwerdling, 2017

The Rise of the Memoir traces the growth and extraordinarily wide appeal of the memoir. Its territory is private rather than public life: shame, guilt, and embarrassment, not the achievements celebrated in the public record. What accounts for the sharp need writers like Rousseau, Woolf, Orwell, Nabokov, Primo Levi, and Maxine Hong Kingston felt to write and to publish such works when they might more easily have chosen to remain silent? Alex Zwerdling explores why each of these writers felt compelled to write them as that story can be reconstructed from personal materials available in archival collections: what internal conflicts they encountered while trying and how each of them resisted the private and public pressures to stop themselves rather than pursuing this confessional route against their own doubts without a reasonable expectation that such works would be welcome in print and eventually find an empathetic audience.

Reconstructing this process in which a dubious project eventually becomes a compelling product, a memoir that will last illuminates both what was at stake and why this serially invented open form has reshaped the expectations of readers who welcomed a vital alternative to the official story.

Dirty Rotten Recruiter Tricks Elaine Delanna Priestley, 2008

This book is an exposé of unscrupulous recruiters: those who deceive job seekers and cheat client companies. It is a fictive memoir of the author's early years in the recruiting business. And she knows what she's talking about. She's a woman who rose to the top of her profession and learned every deceptive practice and dirty recruiter trick imaginable along the way. Dirty Rotten Recruiter Tricks, dramatized through embellished dialogue, gives you a peek inside the grubby end of the business where recruiting charlatans practice their wily crafts. Honest recruiters who provide genuine services to job seekers and client companies alike find their reputations tarnished by such frauds. At the conclusion of each chapter, you will find Elaine's OCO's Diary, a summary of salient points that provide solid advice to help both job candidates and hiring executives avoid the kind of recruiter scams described so graphically in the book. In essence, you'll be getting both an entertaining story along with some valuable advice. For example, you'll learn how recruiters are often trained to lie, what the phrase "slinging shit at a screen" means, and why it reflects the philosophy of far too many recruiters: why it's vitally important that companies vet their recruiters face to face and not over the phone; the dirty tricks recruiters use to get leads on job orders; the obvious disregard, even contempt, many recruiters feel for job candidates; why job applicants should never believe recruiters when they ask for references unless they have job orders in hand; how honesty is the most difficult policy in a profession riddled with liars and cheats; why the recruiting business and telemarketing business are kindred spirits; the underhanded tricks recruiters use to gain the names and addresses of company executives and other hiring authorities; why recruiting is the essential dog-eat-dog business where survival of the fittest takes on biting meaning; why recruiting managers often view the recruiter-company-client relationship as essentially adversarial; what broadcasting resumes means and how it justifiably results in lawsuits.

against recruiters how unscrupulous recruiters encourage job candidates to lie on their resumes why job candidates must keep in touch with hiring authorities of companies during and after the interviewing process and not rely on what recruiters tell them why many company executives won't deal with recruiters under any circumstances For an author bio photo and a sample read visit bosonbooks.com

Cultural Crossroads in the Ancient Novel Marília P. Futre Pinheiro, David Konstan, Bruce Duncan MacQueen, 2017-12-04 The protagonists of the ancient novels wandered or were carried off to distant lands from Italy in the west to Persia in the east and Ethiopia in the south the authors themselves came or pretended to come from remote places such as Aphrodisia and Phoenicia and the novelistic form had antecedents in a host of classical genres These intersections are explored in this volume Papers in the first section discuss mapping the world in the novels The second part looks at the dialogical imagination and the conversation between fiction and history in the novels Section 3 looks at the way ancient fiction has been transmitted and received Space as the locus of cultural interaction and exchange is the topic of the fourth part The fifth and final section is devoted to character and emotion and how these are perceived or constructed in ancient fiction Overall a rich picture is offered of the many spatial and cultural dimensions in a variety of ancient fictional genres

Rewriting American Identity in the Fiction and Memoirs of Isabel Allende B. Craig, 2013-08-20 Moving away from territorially bound narratives toward a more kinetic conceptualization of identity this book represents the first analysis of the politics of American identity within the fiction and memoirs of Isabel Allende Craig offers a radical transformation of societal frameworks through revised notions of place temporality and space

Fictional Akkadian Autobiography Tremper Longman, 1991 That autobiography in ancient literature is fictional has long been recognized The purpose of Longman's study is to delineate the genre of fictional autobiography in Akkadian texts with similar texts from other ancient Near Eastern cultures Included are the texts of all relevant fictional Akkadian autobiographies as well as an appendix containing English translations of them The results of the study are of interest to Assyriologists but also have implications for students of comparative literature and the Bible
