Nguthi,2023-08-28 Using tissue cultured technology is a potentially important way for smallholder banana farmers to improve their yields and income In the situation of the impoverishing effects of high HIV AIDS prevalence in a rural banana farming community this applies even more The research documented in this book examines the balance between required inputs and potential benefits of applying the tissue cultured technology among HIV AIDS affected and non affected households in Maragua district Central Kenya using a livelihood approach The results show that adoption of the technology and its continued use differs according to the resources endowment of the farming households Lack of financial and physical capital notably a water tank inhibits adoption irrespective of HIV AIDS status However households headed by elderly females dominate among the poor households and the HIV AIDS affected households This illustrates how HIV AIDS interfaces with poverty and thereby indirectly with the feasibility of sustainable technology adoption The research also shows that livelihood decisions and strategies of farming households are influenced by land tenure status having title deeds or not and labour constraints at the household level The latter arise as a consequence of HIV AIDS related morbidity and mortality

The East African Medical Journal ,1993 UNDERESTIMATED DAVID KABITHE, MD ,2024-12-27 A smart kid but unaware of it Daudi was a black preteen boy growing up in the American Midwest in the late 1970s He was also the first born son of African immigrants He struggled academically and soon found himself in remedial reading in the Toledo public school system His parents like most African immigrant parents had high academic expectations of their son but Daudi just couldn't seem to measure up in part because of his unrecognized ADHD They tried everything they could think of to help their son flourish in school so they placed him in a nearly all white private Catholic school even though they were Baptist That didn't seem to help Things only got worse for Daudi when his parents decided to move the family to Kenya his ancestral home

Shortly after the move he performed so poorly in the required mathematics entrance test that he was denied admission into the public school near their new home and where his three younger siblings would attend It didn't look like Daudi would ever become a successful student let alone a surgeon back in America Underestimated is a personal memoir about self discovery and an academic turnaround It's about overcoming adversity finding one's true calling and making a meaningful impact against the odds
