Immersion Education Pádraig Ó Duibhir, 2018-05-01 The body of research in this volume offers a detailed account of the success of young immersion learners of Irish in becoming competent speakers of the minority language. Taking account of in-class and out-of-class factors, it examines the variety of Irish spoken by the pupils, the extent to which the Irish spoken deviates from native speaker norms, the degree to which pupils are aware of and attempt to acquire a native-like variety, and the extent to which issues of identity and motivation are involved. The results highlight the limitations of an immersion system in generating active and accurate users of the language outside the immersion setting and will help immersion educators to gain a greater understanding of how young immersion learners learn and acquire the target language The findings are placed in the context of other one way immersion programmes internationally with a particular focus on minority language settings and make an important contribution not only to our understanding of the Irish issues but how the Irish situation can be placed in a broader scholarly and socio political context The Australian Journal of Higher Education ,1961 The Medical circular [afterw.] The London medical press & circular [afterw.] The Medical press & circular ,1879 The British National Bibliography Arthur James Wells,1971 Leaving England Charlotte Erickson,2019-01-24 The British Isles provided more overseas settlers than any country in continental Europe during the nineteenth century but English emigrants to North America have remained largely invisible partly for lack of records about their departure or their experiences Here Charlotte Erickson uses new sources to understand this long neglected group and the nature of their lives in a new land Union List of Higher Degree Theses in Australian University Libraries ,1972
