Drawing on the latest scientific research and verified by an independent neuroscientist, Neuroscience for Organizational Change explores the need for social connection at work, how best to manage emotions and reduce bias in decision making, and why we need communication, involvement, and storytelling to help us through change. Practical tips and suggestions can be found throughout, as well as examples of how these insights have been applied at organizations such as Lloyds Banking Group and GCHQ. Past Present Scott Vaudrey, MD, 2020-07-28 Past Present shows readers how to change destructive relationship patterns by identifying the root issues from their pasts and finding the source of healing for their unique stories. No matter where we are in life, both our greatest joys and our deepest heartaches are linked to the people in our lives: family, friends, or coworkers. And each of us brings both beauty and brokenness into relationships. The origins of our beauty and our brokenness often can be traced to the patterns of relating we learned when we were young. We relate to others in ways that reflect the distorted messages we heard and internalized earlier in life. The good news is this: we don't have to remain stuck in these patterns. In Past Present, Scott Vaudrey equips us with tools and a strategy to identify the messages we've internalized both as children and as adults from the influential people in our lives, refute and repair the distorted messages that led to unhelpful patterns now holding us back, and recognize the productive messages we've internalized and maximize the strengths they built into us along the way. We can't undo yesterday, but we can do the rest of our lives better.

Problems of Living Dan J. Stein, 2021-05-11 Problems of Living Perspectives from Philosophy, Psychiatry, and Cognitive Affective Science addresses philosophical questions related to problems of living, including questions about the nature of the brain, mind, reason, and emotion, happiness and suffering, goodness and truth, and the meaning of life. It draws on critical, pragmatic, and embodied realism, as well as moral naturalism, and brings arguments from metaphysics, epistemology, and ethics together with data from cognitive affective science. This multidisciplinary, integrated approach provides a novel framework for considering not only the nature of mental disorders but also broader issues in mental health, such as finding pleasure and purpose in life. It draws on the strongest aspects of polar positions in philosophy and psychiatry to help resolve important perennial debates in these fields. It explores continuities between early philosophical work and current cognitive affective sciences, including neuroscience and psychology. It employs findings from modern cognitive affective science to rethink key long standing debates in philosophy and psychiatry Builds on work showing how mind is embodied in the brain and embedded in society to provide an integrated conceptual framework Assesses both the insights and the limitations of cognitive affective science for addressing the big questions and hard problems of living
