

Process Analysis

I. Definition

The formal name of the mode is process analysis.

Process = a step-by-step movement from a beginning point to an pointending.

Analysis = a careful examination; a close, detailed look at something

Process analysis writing involves writing to give instructions on how to do something or to describe how something is done. It is another common organizational form of writing. Current self-help books on the market entitled How To . . . are examples of process writing. Process analysis serves readers well if some simple steps are followed to maintain clarity. There are two basic types of process writing: informational and directional. Informational process writing provides information on topics we would like to learn about, i.e. how something works. An example would be an essay on how the heart functions. On the other hand, directional process deals with giving directions on how to do something. An example of this type of writing would be an essay giving directions on changing a tire or a recipe.

There are two kind of process analysis: One instructs or directs the reader how to perform a task, the other informs the reader how something is done, is made, or works.

A process paragraph is a series of steps that explain how something happens or how to make something. It can explain anything from the way to enrich vocabulary to overcoming insomnia to the procedure of operating a machine. It may also give tips for improving pronunciation or for answering a telephone call. Because such explanations must be clear, the process paragraph must be written in chronological order, and it must include a topic sentence that clearly states the paragraph's purpose. It must also include transition words and phrases such as "first," "next," "finally," that connect each of the steps.

There are two kinds of process paragraphs: directional and informational. A directional process paragraph explains the directions to perform a task. It provides the reader a set of instructions or a step-by-step guidance. The following is an example of a directional process paragraph:

Quality Assurance in Blood Banking and Its Clinical Impact C.Th. Smit Sibinga,P.C. Das,H.F. Taswell,2012-12-06 THE PHILOSOPHY OF QUALITY ASSURANCE IN THE BLOOD BANK H F Taswell One year before this symposium Cees Smit Sibinga and I began to discuss an approach to quality assurance in the blood bank which we felt would be both important and practical and could serve as the basis for the choice of subjects to be presented in the symposium As an introduction to this book I would like to outline our approach the subjects chosen and the rationale behind our choice What is the fundamental purpose of a blood bank and trans fusion service Simply stated the purpose of a blood bank and transfusion service and of a quality assurance program in blood banking is for the one to provide and the other to assure safe and effective transfusion therapy This objective is in contrast to that of other clinical laboratories The objective in a clinical chemistry laboratory is to produce accurate test results which will be meaningful to the clinician taking care of his patient In most clinical laboratories therefore the goals of a quality assurance program are largely quantitative that is to assure accurate numerical test results In contrast in the blood bank the goals of quality assurance are primarily qualitative that is to assure safe and effective transfusion As a result two somewhat different approaches to quality assurance are necessary EPA-600/4 ,1977-08
