Transitions In Secondary Education In Sub-Saharan Africa:

Transitions in Secondary Education in Sub-Saharan Africa World Bank, 2008-02-20 This World Bank Working Paper discusses equity and efficiency issues in secondary education transitions in Sub Saharan Africa Its main purpose is to identify and analyze national regional and local measures that may lead to the development of more efficient and seamless transitions between post primary education pathways In most African countries student transition from primary to junior secondary is still accompanied by significant repetition and dropout Transitions within the secondary cycle also cause significant losses and should use more effective assessment and selection methodologies According to global trends Africa needs to revisit its post primary structures to provide more diversified academic and non academic pathways of learning which respond better to the continent s present economic and social realities In the end the main goal should be to produce young people who can become productive citizens and lead healthy lives as demonstrated by middle and higher income economies Strategies for Sustainable Financing of Secondary Education in Sub-Saharan Africa Keith M. Lewin, 2008-02-27 Investment in secondary schooling in Sub Saharan Africa has been neglected since the World Conference on Education for All at Jomtien The World Education Forum at Dakar began to recognize the growing importance of post primary schooling for development Only 25 percent of school age children attend secondary school in the region and fewer complete successfully having consequences for gender equity poverty reduction and economic growth As universal primary schooling becomes a reality demand for secondary schools is increasing rapidly Gaps between the educational levels of the labor force in Sub Saharan Africa and other regions remain large Girls are more often excluded from secondary schools than boys Secondary schooling costs are high to both governments and households This study explores how access to secondary education can be increased Radical reforms are needed in low enrollment countries to make secondary schooling more affordable and to provide more access to the majority currently excluded The report identifies the rationale for increasing access reviews the status of secondary education in Sub Saharan Africa charts the growth needed in different countries to reach different levels of participation identifies the financial constraints on growth and discusses the reforms needed to make access affordable It concludes with a road map of ways to increase the probability that more of Africa s children will experience secondary schooling

Developing Post-Primary Education in Sub-Saharan Africa Alain Mingat, Blandine Ledoux, Ramahatra Rakotomalala, 2010-04-09 Countries in Sub Saharan Africa have made substantial progress in universalizing primary school completion Many young Africans are completing primary schooling and many more will do so in the coming years The pressure already strong to expand secondary and tertiary education is expected to intensify Finding a sustainable path for such expansion is a challenge for all countries in the region Given the diversity across African countries Developing Post Primary Education in Sub Saharan Africa Assessing the Financial Sustainability of Alternative Pathways offers no generic policy fix Rather it seeks to provide policy makers and their development partners with an analytical tool to inform discussion and debate about alternative options in light of country circumstances It presents simulation scenarios that serve an illustrative function to draw attention to the implications of such options as raising the share of education in the national budget reforming the service delivery arrangements to manage costs diversifying the student flow beyond lower secondary education and enlarging the role of private funding particularly in post primary education The study captures the nature of the policy choices by presenting alternative packages of policies and using them to clarify the affordability of what the authors characterize as spartan and generous choices One of the study's most valuable contributions is the flexibility of the simulation model which can be used to adapt the package of policies to national contexts Developing Post Primary Education in Sub Saharan Africa Assessing the Financial Sustainability of Alternative Pathways which contains detailed annexes with results for 33 low income countries will be of interest to national education policy makers and development partners as well as education researchers and education consultants Education in Sub-Saharan Africa Kirsten Majgaard, Alain

Mingat, 2012-06-26 Education in Sub Saharan Africa A Comparative Analysis takes stock of education in Sub Saharan Africa by drawing on the collective knowledge gained through the preparation of Country Status Reports for more than 30 countries

Gender Equity in Junior and Senior Secondary Education in Sub-Saharan Africa World Bank, 2008-07-03 This thematic study consists of case studies of Ghana Malawi and Uganda as well as a review of studies undertaken over the past ten years on education in Africa with particular attention to girls and secondary education Gender equity at the primary level has been the focus of considerable attention within the Education for All Framework of Action but much less so at the secondary level Evidence of gender inequity and inequality in terms of access retention and performance in secondary education in SSA raises many questions While transition rates from primary to secondary are higher for girls than boys and the repetition rates are lower girls still significantly trail behind boys in graduation and enrollment rates The purpose of this study is to document and analyze the extent and nature of gender disadvantage in junior and senior secondary education to analyze the causes of this disadvantage and to identify strategies that may be effective in reducing or eliminating it This study was prepared as part of the Secondary Education and Training in Africa SEIA initiative which aims to assist countries to develop sustainable strategies for expansion and quality improvements in secondary education and training All SEIA products are available on its website www.worldbank.org/afr/seia Curricula, Examinations, and Assessment in Secondary Education in Sub-Saharan Africa World Bank, 2008-02-15 Economic and social changes fast evolution of technology and the growing importance of Internet services and international communications all these require secondary education providers to adapt what is taught and learned in schools However in Africa the content of secondary curricula is in most cases ill adapted to 21st century challenges where young people are mobile have access to more and instant information and face health threats such as HIV AIDS In addition implementation problems exist and the time for instruction is often much less than what is required by the prescribed secondary curriculum In Africa there is a need to develop a secondary education curriculum adapted to the local economic and social environment but with international comparable performance indicators This study analyzes that challenge the quality of curricula and assessment and their development processes in secondary education in Africa against the background of existing contexts conditions and ambitions on the one hand and current pedagogical thinking on the other This World Bank Working Paper was prepared as part of the Secondary Education and Training in Africa SEIA initiative which aims to assist countries to develop sustainable strategies for expansion and quality improvements in secondary education and training

Governance, Management, and Accountability in Secondary Education in Sub-Saharan Africa World Bank,2008-02-14 Increasingly the role of management and governance is recognized as important for providing and delivering effective services at all levels of education In view of the growing demand for more and better services at secondary education levels these are crucial issues that must be addressed urgently Sub Saharan Africa s secondary education and training systems must become more efficient and more effective The current unit costs of junior and senior secondary education in most African countries prevent massive expansion of post primary education This demands a holistic approach to governance and management issues In parallel there is a demand from civil society and governments for greater accountability This study aims to present best practices and identify sustainable development plans for expansion and improved quality and efficiency in the delivery of secondary education in Sub Saharan Africa through better governance management and accountability

Recruiting, Retaining, and Retraining Secondary School Teachers and Principals in Sub-Saharan Africa ,2007-01-01 This working paper is based on country case studies of Ethiopia Ghana Guinea Madagascar Tanzania and Uganda and an extensive literature review In many parts of Africa the demand for secondary teachers substantially exceeds the supply due to factors such as secondary teacher attrition bottlenecks in the teacher preparation system and perceived unattractive conditions of service Few countries have strong policies strategies and programs for recruiting able secondary school graduates to secondary teaching The paper suggests several critical and promising areas for improvement in th realize their hopes and build a better future through education A decade has passed since world leaders adopted the Education for All goals While progress has been made millions of children are still missing out on their right to education Reaching the marginalized identifies some of the root causes of disadvantage both within education and beyond and provides examples of targeted policies and practices that successfully combat exclusion Set against the backdrop of the global economic crisis The Report calls for a renewed financing commitment by aid donors and recipient governments alike to meet the Education for All goals by 2015 This is the eighth edition of the annual EFA Global Monitoring Report The Report includes statistical indicators on all levels of education in more than 200 countries and territories educated youth Even within Ethiopia the second largest country at the Crossroads of Africa and the Middle East different narratives emerge from analysis of longitudinal micro level analysis as to how demographic change and responses are occurring some more rapidly than others The book compares Ethiopia with other Africa countries and demonstrates the uniqueness of an African type demographic transition a combination of poverty related negative factors unemployment disease food insecurity along with positive education health and higher age of marriage trends that are pushing this ruggedly rural and land locked population to accelerate the demographic transition and stay on track to meet most of the MDGs This book takes great care with the challenges of inadequate data and weak analytical capacity to research this incipient transition trying to unravel some of the complexities in this vulnerable Horn of Africa country A slowly declining population growth rates with rapidly declining child mortality very high chronic under nutrition already low urban fertility but still very high rural fertility and high population resource pressure along with rapidly growing small urban places
