

THE COMMONWEALTH FUND

Guidelines for Final Narrative Reports

Note: Depending on the nature of the project being funded, grantees may be asked to provide reports which differ from the general guidelines presented below. Please consult your Fund Program Officer prior to preparing any reports.

Title Page

Please include the following information on the front page of your report: name of the project; the dates of the project period covered by this report and the names, addresses, phone numbers and email address of the Principal Investigator.

Report Sections

- I. Background (up to 1 page) -Restate the goals and objectives of your project and describe what your work tried to achieve. If you feel your original goals and objectives needed to be revised, note this here and then discuss the reasons for the proposed changes in Section III (Accomplishments and Challenges). As a backdrop for the new information included in the next sections, briefly summarize the accomplishments and challenges you described in earlier reports.
- II. Project Implementation and Administration (1-2 pages) - Describe the major administrative and day-to- day activities of the project. These could include: hiring of staff, identification of consultants, recruitment of patients or research subjects, inception of a proposed intervention, and establishment of data bases.
- III. Accomplishments and Challenges - This is the most important section of the report and should account for a significant portion of the narrative. First, if your goals, objectives or activities needed to change from what was originally proposed and approved, please begin by describing the revisions and discussing the reasons for these changes.

Next, focus on the programmatic progress you made. Please refer to the P&R document which includes the particular activities or deliverables from your project in this section. There may be additional items you will wish to describe as well.

While your accomplishments are important, it is equally important that you tell us about challenges you faced and how you addressed them. These may include: obstacles to implementation; changes to your protocol or plan; activities originally proposed that can not be undertaken; and any internal and/or external problems. We have chosen to fund inventive and potentially useful projects. Challenges are inherent to the nature of projects that strive to change a system, test a new model, or explore a new area of inquiry. Sharing the difficulties you faced gives us the chance to help if possible. It also helps us to learn from your experience so we can share with other grantees potential problems they may face.

Specific examples of possible challenges include, but are not limited to (!): unexpected staffing changes, low recruitment rates, delays in setting up services, new regulations, changes in reimbursement, facility mergers, changes in the community that you are working in, or the appearance of a new technology in the field that may affect the issue you are addressing.
