

ESSAY TYPES

NARRATION

Features of Narrative Writing:

- A narrative is a story developed from an event or series of events.
- Narratives usually involve a character in conflict.
- Details of character, setting, conflict, and plot are usually chosen and ordered in such a way as to develop a main theme or idea.
- The beginning of the story usually establishes the characters, setting and mood.
- The middle of the narrative describes events in which the character deals with the main conflict and other minor conflicts.
- The end of the story tells how the conflict is resolved.

PERSUASION

Features of Persuasive Writing:

- Persuasive writing aims to move the reader to support a point of view or to act in support of an idea or cause.
- A persuasive piece often begins with a statement of the author's position, then presents arguments and evidence in favour of that position, and concludes with a call to action or a recommendation.
- Persuasive writers arrange their points for maximum impact on their audience.
- Persuasion usually combines logical and emotional appeals designed to win over a specific audience.

DESCRIPTION

Features of Descriptive Writing:

- Descriptions focus on creating a single dominant impression of a person, place, event, feeling or idea.
- Descriptive writers choose words, images, and details that appeal to more than one sense and that reinforce the dominant impression they want to give their readers.
- Descriptive writing often uses figurative language techniques such as simile and metaphor.
- Descriptions may be organized in various ways: spatially, chronologically, thematically, or in whatever way best suits the topic and purpose.

EXPOSITION

Features of Expository Writing:

- Exposition involves presenting facts to a specific audience.
- Expository writing is arranged to make information as accessible and understandable to the reader as possible.
- Expository writers often define unfamiliar or technical terms by comparing them with something more familiar to the reader.
- The writer's personal opinions and value judgments are usually not part of expository writing.

Concepts and Choices Richard E. Mezo, 2001 Concepts and Choices is a new approach to teaching writing one that incorporates recognized concepts and techniques with some neglected ones and some entirely new ones The assumption is made that extensive practice without attending to such concepts provides nothing more for students than the opportunity for frequent repetition of error Therefore this book calls for smaller manageable units of instruction In addition the so called process model of writing used extensively by teachers today has emphasized the discovery of arguments neglecting almost entirely descriptive narrative writing at the expense of more important elements including the quality of content Writing is a complex activity that cannot be reduced to an analogy in which it is compared to an assembly line at a factory Good writing indeed requires a rigorous apprenticeship one that goes beyond a few hours a day in a classroom This book attempts to provide a guide to good writing

Writing, Reading, and Understanding in Modern Health Sciences Milos Jenicek, 2017-07-27 Medical articles are one of the main vehicles of knowledge translation and evidence communication in the health sciences. Their correct structure and style alone are no longer enough to convey a clear understanding of the intended message. Readers must be able to understand the very essence of the article message. That is the purpose of this book. Writing, Reading, and Understanding in Modern Health Sciences: Medical Articles and Other Forms of Communication will help the authors of medical articles communicate more effectively in today's practice and health research environment. It explores the most effective practices for communicating using three main medical literature formats: through scientific articles (articles where the subject is not based on the practice of the scientific method) and business reports. Describing how to think beyond the prevailing IMRAD article format, this book focuses on the nature, content, domains of thought, and meanings of medical articles. The ideas and underlying propositions in this book are complementary to specific requirements appropriate for each type of medical journal. After reading this book, you will better understand how to write what is considered the most important type of medical article: the research-based medical article. How to write an evidence-based argumentative medical article. The challenges of clinical case reporting. The general framework of medical and research ethics. Classification of medical articles and their underlying studies from the causal standpoint. Supplying you with the understanding required to write more effective medical articles, the book includes details about essay-type articles, research-based articles, thesis as introduction sections, definitions as part of the material and methods sections, modern argumentation and critical thinking, underlying results and their discussion, and conclusions about them.

Writing in English: A Guide for Advanced Learners Dirk Siepmann, John D. Gallagher, Michael Hannay, Mike Hannay, Lachlan Mackenzie, 2022-03-07 This book offers practical advice and guidance to German-speaking undergraduates and academics who aspire to write in English. It also provides valuable assistance to editors, examiners, and teachers who conduct English courses for intermediate or advanced students. It consists of four modules and is rounded off with a subject index and a glossary. Making extensive use of authentic texts, the authors adopt a contrastive approach and focus on the major problems encountered by Germans writing in English. This third edition has been thoroughly revised, updated, and expanded to include, among other things, advice on how to use new Internet technology.

The Sociology Student's Guide to Writing Angelique Harris, Alia R. Tyner-Mullings, 2016-11-29 The Sociology Student's Guide to Writing by Angelique Harris and Alia R. Tyner-Mullings is a brief, economical reference work that gives practical advice about the writing tasks and issues that undergraduate students face in their first sociology courses. Along with more traditional topics, it incorporates valuable information about composing emails, writing for online forums, and using technology for information gathering and note taking. Used by itself or in combination with other texts, this book will increase the quality of student writing and enhance their knowledge of how sociologists communicate in writing.
