Teaching for Student Learning Dick Arends, Ann Kilcher, 2010-02-25 Teaching for Student Learning: Becoming an Accomplished Teacher shows teachers how to move from novice to expert status by integrating both research and the wisdom of practice into their teaching. It emphasizes how accomplished teachers gradually acquire and apply a broad repertoire of evidence-based teaching practices in the support of student learning. The book's content stems from three major fields of study: 1) theories and research on how people learn, including new insights from the cognitive and neurosciences; 2) research on classroom practices shown to have the greatest effect on student learning; and 3) research on effective schooling, defined as school-level factors that enhance student achievement and success. Although the book's major focus is on teaching, it devotes considerable space to describing how students learn and how the most effective and widely used models of teaching connect to principles of student learning. Specifically, it describes how research on teaching, cognition, and neuroscience converge to provide an evidence-based science of learning which teachers can use to advance their practice. Key features include the following: Evidence-Based Practice: This theme is developed through 1) an ongoing review and synthesis of research on teaching and learning and the resulting guidelines for practice, and 2) boxed research summaries within the chapters. Instructional Repertoire Theme: Throughout the book, teaching is viewed as an extremely complex activity that requires a repertoire of instructional strategies that, once mastered, can be drawn upon to fit specific classrooms and teaching situations. Standards-based School Environments: Education today is dominated by standards-based school environments. Unlike competing books, this one describes these environments and shows how they impact curriculum design.

and learning activities The objective is to show how teachers can make standards based education work for them Pedagogical Features In addition to an end of book glossary each chapter contains research boxes reflection boxes itemized end of chapter summaries and end of chapter learning activities Website An accompanying website contains a variety of field oriented and site based activities that teachers can do alone or with colleagues Imagined Truths Bryant

Griffith,2012-01-01 Education is often envisioned as a linear one way cause and effect process with teaching as the cause learning as the effect But the relationships are less tidy less passive and more cyclical than that There is a continuous cycle of inquiry discovery and integration leading to further inquiry Technology facilitates the exchange of information not just teacher to student but student to teacher and student to student The result is that the nature of the development of learning knowledge and even wisdom becomes more transparent This presents challenges of method and identity for the teacher but more importantly it enforces a sense among students of their critical investment in their own education Teachers and learners need to contemplate why and how they construct knowledge An essential part of this reflection is questioning the premises that govern our views of the world as well as the premises of what is presented as knowledge This demands a new epistemology and requires that teachers change their conceptual structures and recognize that all theories of knowledge are not founded solely on formal logic using uninterpreted experience as data Moreover it demands that new models be considered as ways of making sense and of understanding As teachers we realize that learning how to cope with changes of this magnitude requires leadership where relationships are crucial The rapidly emerging significance of social networks is reshaping our world a world that isn't flat but where spiky concentrations of people work together to make things happen creatively It is more the case that the education we need to provide is to solve problems we can't conceive Our cultural narratives when freed of the bounds of instrumental learning become powerful tools for an emerging world where questions and answers are not simple cause and effect equations Yes the teacher is a facilitator but one with the mastery of sufficient material to be able to paint numerous contexts for the learner We need to be open attentive and anticipatory to that which may surprise us to that which we will not expect The shape of past knowledge can be discovered by reflecting on the ways in which we make decisions and by asking why questions These questions frame intentions and focus on the specific process of knowing why and how ideas have changed from the past to the present By placing the self in the middle this process becomes a trialectic of relational thought which in turns becomes the dialectic of learning Exploring Dance Forms and Styles
