The Cognition of Sequences Snehlata Jaswal,2018-01-24 It is impossible to perceive the innumerable stimuli impinging on our senses all at once Out of the myriad stimuli external and internal a few are selected for further processing and even among these we try to put each in some sort of relation with the others to be able to make some sense about them all Time of course is an elementary dimension we use to organize our experiences Thus the perception of sequences is basic to human cognition Nevertheless research addressing sequences is rather sparse Partly this is due to difficulty in designing experiments in this area due to huge individual differences Then there is the assumption that temporal order has more to do with memory than perception Another problem is that sequences seem endemic to the auditory world So much so that some researchers have suggested that sound provides the auditory scaffolding for sequencing behavior

Little wonder that research studies addressing sequences in modalities other than audition are extremely rare This research topic aimed to gather a holistic picture of sequencing behaviour among humans by collecting snapshots of the current research on the topic of sequencing We particularly sought contributions which addressed sequences beyond the auditory modality The single unifying criteria for these diverse contributions was that they shed new light on previously unexplored empirical relationships and or provoked new lines of research with incisive ideas regarding sequencing behavior Seasoned researchers contributed their views on perception memory and production of sequences

Aphasia and Related Neurogenic Communication Disorders Ilias Papathanasiou,Patrick Coppens,2021-06-03 Aphasia and Related Neurogenic Communication Disorders is designed for the graduate course on Aphasia Part 1 of the textbook covers aphasiology while part 2 addresses related disorders Overall the textbook offers an overview of aphasia and related neurogenic communication disorders by presenting important recent advances and clinically relevant information It emphasizes Evidence Based Practice by critically reviewing the pertinent literature and its relevance for best clinical practices Case studies in all clinical chapters illustrate key topics and a Future Directions section in each chapter provides insight on where the field may be headed The WHO ICF

Framework is introduced in the beginning of the text and then reinforced and infused throughout

Adverbial Relations in Turkish-German Bilingualism Seda Yilmaz Wörfel, 2022 The Turkish language in diaspora is in process of change due to different language constellations of immigrants and the dominance of majority languages This led to a great interest in various research areas particularly in linguistics Against this background this study focuses on developmental change in the use of adverbial clause combining constructions in Turkish German bilingual students oral and written text production It illustrates the use of non finite constructions and some unique alternative strategies to express adverbial relations with authentic examples in Turkish and German The findings contribute to a better understanding of how bilingual competencies vary in expressing adverbial relations depending on language contact and extra linguistic factors Dr Seda Yilmaz Wörfel completed a Ph D in German linguistics at the University of Potsdam Germany She works as a research associate at the Mercator Institute for Literacy and Language Education at the University of Cologne Her research interests are Turkish German Bilingualism Second Language Acquisition Multiliteracy and Language Contact

Individual differences in early instructed language learning Raphael Berthele, Isabelle Udry, 2021 Variability in predispositions for language learning has attracted scholarly curiosity for over 100 years Despite major changes in theoretical explanations and foreign second language teaching paradigms some patterns of associations between predispositions and learning outcomes seem timelessly robust This book discusses evidence from a research project investigating individual differences in a wide variety of domains ranging from language aptitude over general cognitive abilities to motivational and other affective and social constructs The focus lies on young learners aged 10 to 12 a less frequently investigated age in aptitude research The data stem from two samples of multilingual learners in German speaking Switzerland The target languages are French and English The chapters of the book offer two complementary perspectives on the topic On the one hand cross sectional investigations of the underlying structure of these individual differences and their association with the target languages are discussed Drawing on factor analytical and multivariable analyses the different components are scrutinized with respect to their mutual dependence and their relative impact on target language skills The analyses also take into account contextual factors such as the learners family background and differences across the two contexts investigated On the other hand the potential to predict learner s skills in the target language over time based on the many different indicators is investigated using machine learning algorithms The results provide new insights into the stability of the individual dispositions on the impact of contextual variables and on empirically robust dimensions within the array of variables tested
