

Exercise of Organisms - Fresh Fly Lab

Pre-Lab Statistical Analysis Section

Example 1

Researchers tested the effect of environmental factors on larval growth and pupal size in Drosophila flies. Flies were reared under three different environmental conditions: control, high temperature, and high humidity. The researchers hypothesized that flies reared under high temperature would have larger pupal size than flies reared under control conditions. The researchers also hypothesized that flies reared under high humidity would have larger pupal size than flies reared under control conditions. The researchers tested these hypotheses using a two-way ANOVA with temperature and humidity as factors.

The researchers found that the main effect of temperature was significant ( $p < 0.05$ ) and the main effect of humidity was not significant ( $p > 0.05$ ). The interaction between temperature and humidity was also not significant ( $p > 0.05$ ).

Control	Low	1.2	0.1
