

Gorilla

Gorilla beringei beringei

Mountain gorillas are a subspecies of eastern gorillas that are adapted for living at higher altitudes. To cope with the thinner air higher up, mountain gorillas have evolved longer trunks. They spend most of the time on the rainforest floor, but occasionally climb trees to find fruit.

DIET

The diet of mountain gorillas largely consists of the leaves, shoots, stems and roots of plants. They eat over 140 different plant species. Fruit only makes up a very small part of their diet. They may also occasionally eat small invertebrates like ants, snails and grubs.

Did You Know?

Gorillas share around 98% of the same DNA as humans. This means that gorillas can catch the same diseases as humans. However, they can be even more dangerous for humans as they have not developed immunity to many common human illnesses such as the cold.

LOCATION

Mountain gorillas live in tropical rainforests on the mountain sides of central Africa. They are found on the borders of the Democratic Republic of Congo and Rwanda, and in Uganda.

Baby gorillas are known as infants.

Mountain Pink-Toe TaranTula

RAINFORESTS

Tarantulas are an ancient arachnid which means that they live in the forest in tropical rain and protect in the dry forest. They are found in tropical rainforests. They have evolved to live in the rainforest which is a lot of food as well as being a very long life.

Did You Know?

The body of a tarantula's body is its abdomen. It is made of an exoskeleton.

- To grow a tarantula (spider) is not very complicated. It grows out of the old exoskeleton and the new exoskeleton appears and gradually builds up again.

This is similar to what happens when a plant grows, but in a tarantula it is much more complex.

DIET

Mountain Pink-Toe Tarantulas mainly eat other invertebrates such as centipedes, beetles and smaller spiders. They may also occasionally catch very small mammals like mice. They catch their food in the middle of their body, waiting for prey to come and then they can catch and hold onto it.

A tarantula can live for many years.

The Djief Hunters, 26,000 Years of Rainforest Exploitation on the Bird's Head of Papua, Indonesia Juliette M. Pasveer, 2004-07-01 Two prehistoric cave sites on the Bird's Head of western New Guinea provide a detailed narrative of 26 000 years of human occupation of this area During Late Pleistocene times lower temperatures allowed a suite of montane animal species to descend onto the lowland Ayamaru Plateau When the montane fauna receded during the subsequent climatic amelioration people switched their hunting focus to a forest wallaby known locally as Djief Detailed analysis of this species remains including the reconstruction of their age profile provides insights into why prolonged hunting of this species did not lead to its extinction The wallaby population evidently thrived at its demographic maximum throughout the early and mid Holocene suggesting that human population densities and therefore hunting pressure were low until c 5000 BP This volume of Modern Quaternary Research in Southeast Asia offers a unique perspective on sustainable hunting in prehistory and provides intriguing insights into hunter gatherer subsistence tool manufacturing and use the changing intensity of occupation of the sites and environmental exploitation from Late Pleistocene times onwards in a lowland tropical region It forms an important contribution to the current debate on the possibilities of human occupation of tropical rainforest before the advent of agriculture
