Corballis,2014-04-27 A groundbreaking theory of what makes the human mind unique The Recursive Mind challenges the commonly held notion that language is what makes us uniquely human In this compelling book Michael Corballis argues that what distinguishes us in the animal kingdom is our capacity for recursion the ability to embed our thoughts within other thoughts I think therefore I am is an example of recursive thought because the thinker has inserted himself into his thought Recursion enables us to conceive of our own minds and the minds of others It also gives us the power of mental time travel the ability to insert past experiences or imagined future ones into present consciousness Drawing on neuroscience psychology animal behavior anthropology and archaeology Corballis demonstrates how these recursive structures led to the emergence of language and speech which ultimately enabled us to share our thoughts plan with others and reshape our environment to better reflect our creative imaginations He shows how the recursive mind was critical to survival in the harsh conditions of the Pleistocene epoch and how it evolved to foster social cohesion He traces how language itself adapted to recursive thinking first through manual gestures then later with the emergence of Homo sapiens vocally Toolmaking and manufacture arose and the application of recursive principles to these activities in turn led to the complexities of human civilization the extinction of fellow large brained hominins like the Neandertals and our species supremacy over the physical world
