

PREPARING AN AUDIT REPORT FOR A CHARITY

Audit and Assurance Faculty Helpsheets are now known as 'Guides'. This Guide was last updated in November 2018 and is based on the relevant laws and regulations that apply as at 1 November 2018. The only changes since the last version of the Guide are to the use of the audit report section to reflect the release of Technical Release 01/03AAF (Revised), make some minor consistency changes and consider the impact of the requirement in the Charities Act 2011 to prepare consolidated financial statements.

Introduction

This Guide is designed to explain the main changes that are needed to the audit report of a charity that does not prepare group financial statements. It does not seek to explain every difference, just the key areas to consider as a result of the differing legal and regulatory requirements.

Charities can have many different legal forms, for example they may be unincorporated entities, incorporated as companies or co-operative and community benefit societies (Scotland only) or have some other legal status. In addition, charity law varies according to the part(s) of the UK in which a charity operates and is registered. These factors all affect the legal responsibilities of the auditor and the wording of the auditor's report. Whilst this Guide deals with company and non-company charities as well as multi-jurisdictional charities, it does not specifically address exempted or exempt charities or those with a principal regulator that is not the Charity Commission in England and Wales ("CCEW"), The Office of the Scottish Charity Regulator ("OSCR") or the Charity Commission for Northern Ireland ("CCNI").

Charitable companies audited under the Companies Act 2006

For a charity that is a UK company, the audit requirements derive solely from the Companies Act 2006 unless:

- a) the company claims audit exemption under the provisions of the Companies Act 2006, in which case the audit requirements of the relevant Charities Act(s) and Regulations (see below) apply; or
- b) the charity is registered as a charity in Scotland, in which case the requirements of Scottish charity law apply in addition to any requirements of the Companies Act 2006.

Most charities that are companies opt for an audit under the Companies Act 2006 regardless of size. Small charitable companies may however claim audit exemption and opt instead to be audited in accordance with applicable charity legislation. References in this Guide to "non-company" charities should therefore be taken as applying also to charitable companies claiming audit exemption under the Companies Act 2006, unless otherwise specified. In general there is little advantage in claiming the Companies Act 2006 exemption where an audit would then be required under relevant charity legislation (due to lower exemption limits in charity law).

Note that where a small company takes advantage of the audit exemption provisions in the Companies Act 2006 it must include on the balance sheet a statement by the directors to the effect
