When maximizing the internal validity of an experiment, what threats are created to external validity? >>> When maximizing internal validity, an experimenter introduces somewhat artificial circumstances that reduce external validity and the generalizability of results.

What are some threats to internal validity? >>> "History" which is the effect of common events occurring in the lives of the participants. "Maturation" is when the participant changes over the course of the observation based on things like growing older, wiser, bored, tired, etc. Testing is also a threat because previous effects of one test may alter results on subsequent tests. Example of this would be practice or familiarity with the testing protocols. (p. 24-34)

Describe the difference between internal validity and external validity. >>> Internal validity refers to the extent to which an investigation rules out or makes implausible alternative explanations of the results, whereas external validity refers to the extent to which the results of an investigation can be generalized beyond the conditions of the experiment to other populations, settings, and circumstances. (p. 24, 36)

Explain why statistical regression is a threat to internal validity and how it can be avoided. >>> Statistical regression refers to the tendency for extreme scores on any measure to revert toward the mean. If testing a participant twice and seeing an improvement the second occurs, it is difficult to know whether this is due to the treatment or the tendency for scores to become less extreme. In order to decrease this threat, one can use a control group to discern whether the changes in the two treatment conditions were any greater than changes without treatment (pg. 28-29)

To pose a threat to validity, what two conditions must be met? >>> To pose a threat to validity, the difference found as a result of the intervention must systematically vary between experimental groups or conditions. Also, that difference must be plausible and reasonably be able to explain the results. Frivolous differences are not reasonable threats to validity (p.31-32).

Reactivity of an experimental arrangement functions as a threat to external validity insofar as subjects are aware of their participation in an investigation, and thus, could act in nuanced ways. The concern to external validity is whether these results would be obtained if subjects were not aware of their participation; however, ethical protocols dictate awareness of participation. What type of investigation might be an exception to this paradigm? >>> Studies that examine records and thus may not require informed consent. Pg. 42 been designed not only to equip students with the fundamental knowledge and skills required in the field of educational research but also to foster a deeper understanding of its significance in the academic and professional spheres. Research plays an essential role in the continuous development of educational systems and policies. It provides the foundation for evidence-based decision making, supports the exploration of new ideas, and promotes an informed and reflective approach to the teaching-learning process. The course outlined in this book covers the key aspects of educational research, ensuring that students are introduced to both theoretical concepts and practical applications that will guide them throughout their academic and professional journeys. The learning outcomes of this course, as described, aim to empower students with a robust understanding of the concepts surrounding educational research. They will gain knowledge of the various types of educational research: fundamental, applied, and action research, along with the key steps involved in conducting meaningful research. Students will also learn the intricacies of preparing a research proposal, a skill that will be invaluable for their future research endeavors. The contents of this book are divided into five main units. In Unit 1, we explore the meaning, definitions, characteristics, and objectives of educational research, offering an in-depth understanding of its scope and importance. In Unit 2, we dive into the process of formulating a research proposal, including the development of research questions, objectives, hypotheses, and the use of research tools such as questionnaires, interview schedules, and observation schedules. Unit 3 focuses on the review of related literature, emphasizing its nature, sources, and the critical role it plays in shaping the direction of research. Unit 4 delves into research design, the significance of population and sample selection, and the methods of data collection, organization, analysis, and interpretation. Finally, in Unit 5, we discuss report writing, guiding students through the structure and organization of research reports, which is crucial for presenting their research findings in a clear and professional manner. This book is designed not only to support students in their coursework but also to inspire a passion for research and inquiry. It is my hope that students, upon completing this course, will not only understand the process of conducting educational research but also develop the critical thinking skills necessary to engage in thoughtful, reflective, and impactful research in the field of education. The content of this book has been carefully curated to align with the syllabus prescribed by Gauhati University for the 5th semester of the B.A. program, ensuring that the material is both relevant and applicable to the students' academic pursuits. Additionally, I have included practical examples, illustrations, and exercises to further enhance the learning experience and to ensure that students are able to apply theoretical knowledge to real-world situations. I would like to extend my deepest gratitude to the faculty members of Gauhati University for their support in this endeavor and to the students who will benefit from this book. I sincerely hope that this book serves as a valuable resource for all those seeking to expand their understanding of research methodology in education.
