Gilhooly,2017-01-06 Recent formulations of the inductive continual problem of evil require us to consider new responses to the charge that there is something irrational about believing in God given the type and amount of evil in the world Furthermore fresh approaches to the problem of evil offer suggestive ways to enter a new line of inquiry in regards to both theistic defences against various articulations of the problem of evil and also theodicy Finally developments in contemporary theology especially analytic philosophical theology likewise require new treatments of the problem of evil This volume on the problem on evil presents a series of essays that incorporate responses to these developments The articles fall into three broad sections The first critiques and examines the analytic inductive problem of evil on the basis of its modal underpinnings the discourse of possible worlds and issues related to hiddenness and vagueness

The second part presents a narrative response to the problem of evil. Its approaches attempt to show the way in which peculiar features of narrative such as dramatic irony, verisimilitude, and distinctions between person-type propositions offer fresh ways to encapsulate our feelings about evil and our response to the theological problems raised by encounters with evil. Such existential concerns are valuable for our thinking about these matters. The third section relates the problem of evil to developments in contemporary analytic theology such as open theism, idealism, and the felix culpa theodicy.
