Cummings accuses PM of lying over No 10 party

Rosemary Wootton writes from London

Downing Cummings has accused Boris Johnson of lying after No 10 denied the prime minister was worried about allowing a "bring your own booze" party during the Southdowns.

Johnson admitted to parliament last week that he attended drinks in the Downing Street garden on May 20, 2020, but claimed he had no recollection it was a social gathering.

The event was organised by Johnson's principal private secretary (PPS), Martin Reynolds, who told people to "bring your own booze" - but No 10 denies that the prime minister saw the invited gathering disturbed. I think it's OK, I'll check with the PM if he's happy for it to go ahead."

Cummings then said that during a discussion over the future of the cabinet secretary and Reynolds, he had said to the prime minister something like: "Someone invited the building to a drinks party, this is what I'm talking about, you've got to give this madhouse."

Cummings added: "The PM used it well. I had told him repeatedly the PPS should be replaced, as had other competent officials who knew the whole structure needed a huge upgrade in personnel and management. This guy, John? I want you replacing him with YOUR person? (Yes, this says a lot.) I want him to feel at least still very ill from Covid."

Critique, Social Media and the Information Society

Christian Fuchs,Marisol Sandoval,2013-11-26 In times of global capitalist crisis we are witnessing a return of critique in the form of a surging interest in critical theories such as the critical political economy of Karl Marx and social rebellions as a reaction to the commodification and instrumentalization of everything On one hand there are overdrawn claims that social media Twitter Facebook YouTube etc have caused uproars in countries like Tunisia and Egypt On the other hand the question arises as to what actual role social media play in contemporary capitalism crisis rebellions the strengthening of the commons and the potential creation of participatory democracy The commodification of everything has resulted also in a commodification of the communication commons including Internet communication that is today largely commercial in character This book deals with the questions of what kind of society and what kind of Internet are desirable how capitalism power structures and social media are connected how political struggles are connected to social media what current developments of the Internet and society tell us about potential futures how an alternative Internet can look like and how a participatory commons based Internet and a co operative participatory sustainable information society can be achieved

From Corporate to Social Media Marisol Sandoval,2014-03-05 The corporate and the social are crucial themes of our times In the first decade of the twenty first century both individual lives and society were shaped by capitalist crisis and the rise of social media But what marks the distinctively social character of social media And how does it relate to the wider social and economic context of contemporary capitalism The concept of Corporate Social Responsibility CSR is based on the idea that a socially responsible capitalism is possible this suggests that capitalist media corporations can not only enable social interaction and cooperation but also be socially responsible This book provides a critical and provocative perspective on Corporate Social Responsibility CSR in media and communication industries It examines both the academic discourse on CSR and actual corporate practices in the media sector offering a double critique that reveals contradictions between corporate interests and social responsibilities Marisol Sandoval's political economic analysis of Apple AT T Google HP Microsoft News Corp The Walt Disney Company and Vivendi shows that media and communication in the twenty first century are confronted with fundamental social responsibility challenges From software patents and intellectual property rights to privacy on the Internet from working conditions in electronics manufacturing to hidden flows of eWaste this book encourages the reader to explore the multifaceted social responsibilities that shape commercial media landscapes today It makes a compelling argument for thinking beyond the corporate in order to envision and bring about truly social media It will interest students and scholars of media studies cultural industry studies sociology information society studies organization studies political economy business and management

Public Parts Jeff Jarvis, 2011-09-27 A visionary and optimistic thinker examines the tension between privacy and publicness that is transforming how we form communities create identities do business and live our lives Thanks to the internet we now live more and more in public More than 750 million people and half of all Americans use Facebook where we share a billion times a day The collective voice of Twitter echoes instantly 100 million times daily from Tahrir Square to the Mall of America on subjects that range from democratic reform to unfolding natural disasters to celebrity gossip New tools let us share our photos videos purchases knowledge friendships locations and lives Yet change brings fear and many people nostalgic for a more homogeneous mass culture and provoked by well meaning advocates for privacy despair that the internet and how we share there is making us dumber crasser distracted and vulnerable to threats of all kinds But not Jeff Jarvis In this shibboleth destroying book Public Parts argues persuasively and personally that the internet and our new sense of publicness are in fact doing the opposite Jarvis travels back in time to show the amazing parallels of fear and resistance that met the advent of other innovations such as the camera and the printing press The internet he argues will change business society and life as profoundly as Gutenberg's invention shifting power from old institutions to us all Based on extensive interviews Public Parts introduces us to the men and women building a new industry based on sharing Some of them have become household names Facebook's Mark Zuckerberg Google's Eric Schmidt and Twitter's Evan Williams Others may soon be recognized as the industrialists philosophers and designers of our future Jarvis explores the promising ways in which the internet and publicness allow us to collaborate think ways how we manufacture and market buy and sell organize and govern teach and learn He also examines the necessity as well as the limits of privacy in an effort to understand and thus protect it This new and open era has already profoundly disrupted economies industries laws ethics childhood and many other facets of our daily lives But the change has just begun The shape of the future is not assured The amazing new tools of publicness can be used to good ends and bad The choices and the responsibilities lie with us Jarvis makes an urgent case that the future of the internet what one technologist calls the eighth continent requires as much protection as the physical space we share the air we breathe and the rights we afford one another It is a space of the public for the public and by the public It needs protection and respect from all of us As Secretary of State Hillary Clinton said in the wake of the uprisings in the Middle East If people around the world are going to come together every day online and have a safe and productive experience we need a shared vision to guide us Jeff Jarvis has that vision and will be that guide
