focus on Anne Enright's The Gathering, Eimear McBride's A Girl Is a Half-Formed Thing and Emilie Pine's Ruth. This book examines how Irish women writers have engaged with Joyce's legacy. Unlike their male counterparts who have often felt overshadowed by Joyce's influence, Irish women writers have embraced and expanded upon his work, viewing it not as a constraint but as an opening to new creative possibilities. This book will be of particular value to Joyce scholars working in feminism and reception studies as well as students of Irish literature and women's writing. It offers fresh insights into the evolving landscape of Irish literature and complicates Harold Bloom's theory of the Anxiety of Influence, demonstrating how women writers perceive canonical figures like Joyce not as rivals but as trailblazers. Understanding Anne Enright

Ana-Karina Schneider, 2020-07-28 Addressed to both literary scholars and the general reader, Understanding Anne Enright is an introduction to the novels and stories of one of the most original and engaging contemporary Irish writers. It analyses developments in Enright's writing, comparing the evolution of themes and forms from one book to another, contextualising her fiction and interrogating the impact of concepts such as postmodernism, post-feminism and post-nationalism on the writing and reading of her work. It particularly follows the evolution of Enright's treatment of the corporeality of women's experiences and its correlation with the embodied language of her fiction. Thus, this book shows how Enright's writing participates in the latest thematic and formal trends, not only of Irish or British but also of Western literature. The New Irish Studies

Paige Reynolds, 2020-09-24 The New Irish Studies demonstrates how diverse critical approaches enable a richer understanding of contemporary Irish writing and culture. The early decades of the twenty-first century in Ireland and Northern Ireland have seen an astonishing rate of change, one that reflects the common understanding of the contemporary as a moment of acceleration and flux. This collection tracks how Irish writers have represented the peace and reconciliation process in Northern Ireland, the consequences of the Celtic Tiger economic boom in the Republic, the waning influence of Catholicism, the increased authority of diverse voices and an altered relationship with Europe. The essays acknowledge the distinctiveness of contemporary Irish literature, reflecting a sense that the local can shed light on the global even as they reach beyond the limited tropes that have long identified Irish literature. The collection suggests routes forward for Irish Studies and unsettles presumptions about what constitutes an Irish classic. Irish Women Writers and the Modern Short Story Elke D'Hoker, 2016-07-28 This book traces the development of the modern short story in the hands of Irish women writers from the 1890s to the present. George Egerton, Somerville and Ross, Elizabeth Bowen, Mary Lavin, Edna O'Brien, Anne Enright and Claire Keegan are only some of the many Irish women writers who have made lasting contributions to the genre of the modern short story, yet their achievements have often been marginalized in literary histories which typically define the Irish short story in terms of its oral heritage, nationalist concerns, rural realism and outsider hero. Through a detailed investigation of the short fiction of fifteen prominent writers, this study aims to open up this critical conceptualization of the Irish short story to the formal properties and thematic concerns women writers bring to the genre.

What stands out in thematic terms is an abiding interest in human relations whether of love the family or the larger community In formal terms this book traces the overall development of the Irish short story highlighting both the lines of influence that connect these writers and the specific use each individual author makes of the short story form American Short Story since 1950 Kasia Boddy,2010-08-31 This book focuses specifically on short fiction written since 1950 a particularly rich and diverse period in the history of the form A selective approach has been taken focusing on the best and most representative work The Picador Book of Irish Contemporary Fiction Dermot Bolger,1993 Draws only on Irish fiction published since 1970 Close to the Next Moment Jody Allen Randolph,2010-09-30 In the first decade of the new millennium Jody Allen Randolph interviewed twenty two leading Irish poets artists fiction writers and playwrights to create a record of how the makers of a culture saw their country as it moved into a new era Her exploration was shadowed by intimations of unease as economic collapse gathered pace recurrent concerns gained a new urgency What are Irish values How have they changed How do new cultural realities affect the old arts of language and image which have been so important in Irish tradition In journeys across political divides and between languages from Seamus Heaney and Nuala Ní Dhomhnaill deeply rooted in Irish inheritance to African Irish Joyce Akpotor from Gerry Adams for whom when our future is settled we will agree on our history to the artist Dorothy Cross who brings an international perspective to her redefinitions of Irish imagery Close to the Next Moment captures the conversations that are remaking a culture
