A History of Modern Psychology in Context Wade Pickren, Alexandra Rutherford, 2010-02-19. In A History of Modern Psychology in Context, the authors resist the traditional storylines of great achievements by eminent people or schools of thought that rise and fall in the wake of scientific progress. Instead, psychology is portrayed as a network of scientific and professional practices embedded in specific contexts. The narrative is informed by three key concepts: indigenization, reflexivity, and social constructionism, and by the fascinating interplay between disciplinary psychology and everyday psychology.

Self Psychology and Diagnostic Assessment Marshall L. Silverstein, 1999. The self psychology of Heinz Kohut has been an important force in contemporary psychoanalytic thought, and its ramifications for therapy have been extensively explored. Now Marshall Silverstein offers the first analysis of the application of self psychology to projective diagnostic assessment. Differentiating the self psychological approach from an ego psychological interpretation of classical drive theory, he clearly outlines the principal contributions of Kohut, including the concepts of selfobject functions, empathy, transmuting internalization, and compensatory structure. Providing numerous clinical examples, he shows how the major selfobject functions of mirroring, idealization, and twinship can be identified on projective tests. Silverstein then demonstrates how conventional assessment approaches to grandiosity self esteem and idealization can be reconceptualized within the framework of self psychology and he also contrasts ego psychological interpretations with self psychological interpretations This book makes a strong case for the importance of the clinical identification of self states It will help practitioners understand their patients varied attempts to repair an injury to the self to restore self esteem compensatory structure and the clinical consequences of self disorders including disintegration products such as narcissistic rage and affect states characterized by empty depression chronic boredom and lack of zest Persuasion Psychology Wesley Felt, This book contains two titles Here are some snippets of what you can find in there Book 1 Why does understanding a psychological risk lead to physical reactions The answer lies in human anatomy specifically in the mechanisms behind real pain Is mental pain comparable to physical pain How does intense pain manifest When it comes to physical pain the process is straightforward We rarely consider the basic motor reflexes controlled by the spine During physical sensation a nervous impulse is transmitted through the nerves to the corresponding part of the brain which then sends a response impulse to an organ But how does mental pain occur Our bodies possess a self regulation function for all physiological processes In essence the brain responds to changes in the body s chemical processes Book 2 Many believe that the most successful people in the world have mastered the ability to use their minds to attract what they desire Imagine being able to draw what you want most into your life effortlessly without having to take direct action Imagine being able to manifest your goals and desires through the discipline of your thoughts Everything begins with thoughts which most people don t fully grasp as actions are rooted in these ideas Before diving into the methods that harness the power of the mind it s important to ask What is the subconscious mind The subconscious is a part of the mind that while not fully conscious influences a person s actions and feelings Some view the subconscious as connected to the spirit or soul capable of shaping your reality based on the messages it receives from your actions and beliefs The Psychology of Personality Bernardo J.
