AUDIO SCRIPT:

My most frightening experience, I think it was on a trip to northern Spain with my best friend Amy. We were both taking a holiday before we started university. It was October, I think, because we always used to take our holidays in the autumn, it's much cheaper. The weather was lovely and the sun was shining. It was warm, but not too hot like it can be in the summer. There we were chatting and having a good time when we decided to go for a hike up a mountain near our campsite. The mountain didn't look too high and we thought we could get back before it got dark. The paths weren't very clearly signposted, and we got a bit lost. When we finally reached the top, it was freezing. I mean, it was really, really windy. Suddenly there was dark grey cloud all around us and we couldn't see anything. Then it started snowing. We couldn't believe it. The weather had been so warm and sunny. We weren't prepared at all and only had thin jumpers and rain jackets. Both of us were wearing shorts. Oh, so stupid. We were laughing at first, but we soon realised how dangerous our situation was. We couldn't go back down because we couldn't see anything, but we couldn't stay there without getting dangerously cold. We looked around for somewhere to escape the bad weather and found a small hut that sold snacks during the summer. It was all locked up now though. We were so cold that our lips were turning blue. I really thought we were going to die. I was wondering what to do when Amy picked up a big rock. I had no idea what she was going
