Bureau of Reclamation,1925 A Theory of Virtue Robert Merrihew Adams,2008-10-23 The distinguished philosopher Robert M Adams presents a major work on virtue which is once again a central topic in ethical thought A Theory of Virtue is a systematic comprehensive framework for thinking about the moral evaluation of character Many recent attempts to stake out a place in moral philosophy for this concern define virtue in terms of its benefits for the virtuous person or for human society more generally In Part One of this book Adams presents and defends a conception of virtue as intrinsic excellence of character worth prizing for its own sake and not only for its benefits In the other two parts he addresses two challenges to the ancient idea of excellence of character One challenge arises from the importance of altruism in modern ethical thought and the question of what altruism has to do with intrinsic excellence Part Two argues that altruistic benevolence does indeed have a crucial place in excellence of character but that moral virtue should also be expected to involve excellence in being for other goods besides the well being and the rights of other persons It explores relations among cultural goods personal relationships one s own good and the good of others as objects of excellent motives The other challenge the subject of Part Three of the book is typified by doubts about the reality of moral virtue arising from experiments and conclusions in social psychology Adams explores in detail the prospects for an empirically realistic conception of excellence of character as an object of moral aspiration endeavor and education He argues that such a conception will involve renunciation of the ancient thesis of the unity or mutual implication of all virtues and acknowledgment of sufficient moral luck in the development of any individual s character to make virtue very largely a gift rather than an individual achievement though nonetheless excellent and admirable for that New tool for participatory learning and experimentation all over the world This work results from a critical analysis of the introduction of the FFS concept into the agricultural innovation system in Uganda Ideally an FFS produces new technical knowledge in the context of application through the input of local human resources The analysis framed as a technography shows that implementation and operation of an FFS is hugely complex This detailed study of institutional factors from the level of international donor organizations down to the level of local leadership and gender relations and analysis of technical factors in different rural areas of Uganda makes clear that and FFS is more than a local tool for farmer participation in agricultural improvement Implementation of a FFS requires adjustment of the agricultural innovation system at all levels and an integrated tackling of agricultural problems in order to meet its objectives Isubikalu shows that it is imperative to demolish existing organizational structures and create new ones which align scientific with local structures to produce an appropriate people centered system that is more responsive to agricultural and rural development She provides stepping stones in redesigning FFS to fit the specific conditions in Uganda ECRM2008-Proceedings of the 7th European Conference on Research Methods Ann Brown,2008
