A Cultural History of Climate Change Tom Bristow, Thomas H. Ford, 2016-04-20 Charting innovative directions in the environmental humanities this book examines the cultural history of climate change under three broad headings history writing and politics Climate change compels us to rethink many of our traditional means of historical understanding and demands new ways of relating human knowledge action and representations to the dimensions of geological and evolutionary time To address these challenges this book positions our present moment of climatic knowledge within much longer histories of climatic experience Only in light of these histories it argues can we properly understand what climate means today across an array of discursive domains from politics literature and law to neighbourly conversation Its chapters identify turning points and experiments in the construction of climates and of atmospheres of sensation They examine how contemporary ecological thought has repoliticised the representation of nature and detail vital aspects of the history and prehistory of our climatic modernity This ground breaking text will be of great interest to researchers and postgraduate students in environmental history environmental governance history of ideas and science literature and eco criticism political theory cultural theory as well as all general readers interested in climate change

Climate Change and the Course of Global History John L. Brooke, 2014-03-17 The first global study by a historian to fully integrate the earth system approach of the new climate science with the material history of humanity

Encyclopedia of Global Warming Steven I. Dutch, 2010 Designed to provide students at the high school and undergraduate levels with a convenient source of information on the fundamental science and sociopolitical issues including the debates and controversies surrounding climate change The study of climate change involves not only scientists but also politicians policy makers businesses government and nongovernment agencies and the general public A student attempting to understand both the environmental science and social issues and controversies will encounter not just scientific terms and concepts but political organizations geographic areas social concepts persons countries organizations and laws as well The essays in the set fall into one or more of the following broad categories animals Arctic and Antarctic astronomy chemistry and geochemistry climatic events and epochs conferences and meetings cryology and glaciology diseases and health effects economics industries and products energy environmentalism conservation and ecosystems ethics human rights and social justice fossil fuels geology and geography laws treaties and protocols meteorology and atmospheric sciences nations and peoples oceanography organizations and agencies physics and geophysics plants and vegetation pollution and waste popular culture and society science and technology transportation and water resources Publisher Unstoppable Global Warming S. Fred Singer, 2006-09-13 Singer and Avery present in popular language supported by in depth scientific evidence the compelling concept that global temperatures have been rising mostly or entirely because of a natural cycle Using historic data from two millennia of recorded history combined with the natural physical records found in ice cores seabed sediment cave stalagmites and tree rings Unstoppable Global Warming argues that the 1 500 year solar driven cycle that has always controlled the earth s climate remains the driving force in the current warming trend Trillions of dollars spent on reducing fossil fuel use would have no effect on today s rising temperatures The public policy key Singer and Avery propose is adaptation not fruitless attempts at prevention Further they offer convincing evidence that civilization s most successful eras have coincided with the cycle s warmest peaks With the added benefit of modern technology humanity can not only survive global climate change but thrive

Climate, Catastrophe, and Faith Philip Jenkins, 2021 The author draws out the complex relationship between religion and climate change He shows that the religious movements and ideas that emerge from climate shocks often last for many decades and become a familiar part of the religious landscape even though their origins in particular moments of crisis may be increasingly consigned to remote memory From jacket flap

Global Warming Frances Drake, 2014-05-01 This topical textbook provides a bridge between technical and popular texts on global warming within the broader context of climate change Written at an introductory level it explains the interacting components of this system what the greenhouse effect is and how scientists seek to predict climate change It makes accessible the technical and heavy science literature to the non science student Global warming is one of the major environmental problems facing the world today But it is an issue surrounded by great contention because it is based largely on scientific prediction and has yet to be proven Opinion is divided regarding whether global warming will occur and if it does what the effects will be In order to appreciate the uncertainties surrounding this issue it is necessary to understand the workings of the climate system and the methods by which scientists seek to predict climate change Global Warming aims to make accessible the heavily technical literature to the non science student providing a bridge between the highly scientific and the popular non academic texts Placing global warming within the broader context of climate change this textbook details the interacting components of the climatic system reviewing the importance of changing carbon dioxide levels for the evolution of the Earth s atmosphere and climate Utilising observed and modelled data it presents the latest evidence for and against global warming whilst highlighting the difficulties involved with analysing both types of data and introducing areas of controversy within research The book also addresses the important problem of making policy decisions for the future based on the uncertain science of global warming

Racing to the Top William R. Thompson, Leila Zakhirova, 2019 In the international political economy of the last two millennia there tends to be one state leading the world as the foremost producer of energy and new technology In Racing to the Top William R Thompson and Leila Zakhirova argue that the US and China like previous leading countries rely on energy transition or the development of alternative energy in order to make new technology relatively inexpensive to develop and to fuel While the US has historically held the lead its edge in the global energy economy appears to be eroding and as energy leadership diminishes so does the country's position in world politics Thompson and Zakhirova take a long view in order to show what will be necessary for a new power to emerge as the system leader then map a path forward for energy policy Informed by a deep knowledge of world history political economy and environmental technology this book is the first complete overview of energy transitions over the past thousand years Dinosaurs Ever

Evolving Allen A. Debus, 2016-06-21 From their discovery in the 19th century to the dawn of the Nuclear Age dinosaurs were seen in popular culture as ambassadors of the geological past and as icons of the life through time narrative of evolution They took on a more foreboding character during the Cold War serving as a warning to mankind with the advent of the hydrogen bomb As fears of human extinction escalated during the ecological movement of the 1970s dinosaurs communicated their metaphorical message of extinction urging us from our destructive path Using an eclectic variety of examples this book outlines the three fold evolution of dinosaurs and other prehistoric monsters in pop culture from their poorly understood beginnings to the 21st century Timescales and Environmental Change Graham

Chapman, Thackwray Driver, 2002-11 Leading experts from a diverse range of disciplines encourage the reader from whatever perspective to think about change and environmental issues in a new light through different time scales US

Exploitation and Overexploitation in Societies Past and Present Brigitta Benzing, Bernd

Herrmann, 2003 Human impact on landscape can be conceptualised in terms of socially governed ecological systems In the past the adaptive capacity of human cultural systems has been emphasised Nowadays a shift can be recognised towards modified views Resources are discussed as prerequisites for establishing complex human societies This includes also a more biologically minded view from the standpoint of the humanities In such a view human societal complexes can be understood as systems that manage energy and matters The concept of social metabolic regimes has developed in such a context Cultures as seen within this paradigm are not understood merely as autopoietic symbolic entities but as results of an interaction of material prerequisites and emerging social structures One might dismiss this as an epistemological shift part of the play of science with itself But it remains unsolved so far in terms of evolutionary theory if the ultimate goal of evolution is reproductive success or access

Climatic Variability in Sixteenth-Century Europe and Its Social Dimension Christian Pfister, Rudolf Brázdil, Rüdiger Glaser, 2013-03-14 A multidecadal cooling is known to have occurred in Europe in the final decades of the sixteenth century It is still open to debate as to what might have caused the underlying shifts in atmospheric circulation and how these changes affected societies This book is the fruit of interdisciplinary cooperation among 37 scientists including climatologists hydrologists glaciologists dendroclimatologists and economic and cultural historians The known documentary climatic evidence from six European countries is compared to results of tree ring studies Seasonal temperature and precipitation are estimated from this data and monthly mean surface pressure patterns in the European area are reconstructed for outstanding anomalies Results are compared to fluctuations of Alpine glaciers and to changes in the frequency of severe floods and coastal storms Moreover the impact of climate change on grain prices and wine production is assessed Finally it is convincingly argued that witches at that time were burnt as scapegoats for climatic change

The Moon in the Nautilus Shell Daniel B. Botkin, 2012-09-14 Why do we keep talking about so many environmental problems and rarely solve any If these are scientific issues then why can't scientists solve them or at least agree on what to do In his new book The Moon in the Nautilus Shell ecologist Daniel Botkin explains why For one thing although we live in a world of constantly changing environments and talk a lot about climate change most of our environmental laws policies and scientific premises are based on the idea that the environment is constant never changing except when people affect it For another we have lost contact with nature in personal ways Disconnected from our surroundings we lack the deep understanding and feelings about the environment to make meaningful judgments The environment has become just another one of those special interests that interferes with our lives Poised to be a core text of the twenty first century environmental movement The Moon in the Nautilus Shell challenges us to think critically about our role in nature

influenced place names in their landscape contexts can provide crucial new evidence of differing processes of Viking migration and settlement in East Anglia between the late ninth and eleventh centuries. The place names of East Anglia have until now received little attention in the academic study of Viking settlement. Similarly, the question of a possible migration of settlers from Scandinavia during the Viking period was for many years dismissed by historians and archaeologists until the recent discovery by metal detectorists of abundant Scandinavian metalwork and jewellery in many parts of East Anglia. David Boulton has synthesised these two previously neglected elements to offer new insights into the processes of Viking settlement. This book provides the first comprehensive analysis of Scandinavian influenced place names in East Anglia. It examines their different categories linguistically and explores the landscape and archaeological contexts of the settlements associated with them with the aid of GIS generated maps. Dr Boulton shows how the process of Viking settlement was influenced by changes in rural society and agriculture which were then already occurring in East Anglia such as the late Anglo Saxon expansion of arable farming and the associated recolonisation of the inland clay plateau. These developments resulted in patterns of place name formation which differ significantly from some of the previously accepted orthodox interpretations of how Scandinavian influenced place names, especially those containing the b and thorp elements and the Grimston hybrids, came into being in the Danelaw. In view of these discrepancies, David Boulton proposes an innovative hypothetical model for the formation of the Scandinavian influenced place names in East Anglia which explores differing patterns and phases of Viking settlement in the region and the possible pathways of migration that preceded them.
