

13.1 - The Rise of Napoleon

The chaos of the Reign of Terror made many in France weary of the path of radicalization the revolution had taken. Although most still supported the Enlightenment ideology that the revolution had brought, the mass guillotining and political infighting had left the country without a clear direction.

1. Why were many people scared/wary about the results of the French Revolution?

Many hoped simply for the government to bring stability and some sense of normalcy to the nation. Into this void a revolutionary general named Napoleon Bonaparte seized power and took it upon himself to transform France from a republic into a powerful Empire. This French Empire exported the ideology of the revolution, producing an outpouring of nationalism and war. In his wake, Napoleon and his armies unknowingly created the foundations of modern Europe and the modern state.

2. Who seized power in France and created a powerful Empire?

Napoleon and the Revolution

Napoleon Bonaparte was born in 1769 on the Mediterranean island of Corsica. When he was nine years old, his parents sent him to a military school. Early on Napoleon distinguished himself as a brilliant strategist and leader. At the age of 16, he finished school and became a lieutenant in the artillery. When the revolution broke out, Napoleon joined the army of the new government. The chaos of the revolution offered Napoleon, like many young military leaders, the chance to advance in the military through cunning and skill unlike the military of the Old Regime. The new military of the revolutionary government was built on merit, allowing individuals with talent to be promoted. Napoleon seized this opportunity and quickly became one of the leading military leaders of the French Republic.

3. Napoleon was able to quickly advance in his military career because the new government of France rewarded men based on merit. What does merit mean?

In October of 1795, fate handed the young officer a chance for glory. When royalist rebels marched on the National Convention, a government official told Napoleon to defend the delegates. Napoleon and his gunners greeted the thousands of royalists with cannonade. Within minutes, the attackers fled in panic and confusion. Napoleon Bonaparte became the hero of the hour and was hailed throughout Paris as the savior of the French Republic.

4. Napoleon got his 15 minutes of fame when he defended Paris from _____ rebels.

The fame earned by Napoleon's defense of the Convention earned him the command of a French army against the forces of Austria and the Kingdom of Sardinia in 1796. In Italy, Napoleon won a series of remarkable victories in stunning fashion. These victories took on greater significance as many in France became disillusioned with the government's inability to bring stability to France. Napoleon continued his military success with an expedition to Egypt. The mystique and history of Egypt drew Napoleon to there to fight the British to disrupt British trade.

5. The French forces (with Napoleon in tow) took on what countries?

- a.
- b.

6. Why were French forces in Egypt?
