1930s Willard Waller noted Fifty years or more ago about 1890 most people had the greatest respect for the institution called the family and wished to learn nothing whatever about it Everything that concerned the life of men and women and their children was shrouded from the light Today much of that has been changed Gone is the concealment of the way in which life begins gone the irrational sanctity of the home The aura of sentiment which once protected the family from discussion clings to it no more We want to learn as much about it as we can and to understand it as thoroughly as possible for there is a rising recognition in America that vast numbers of its families are sick from internal frustrations and from external buffeting We are engaged in the process of reconstructing our family institutions through criticism and discussion 1938 pp 3 4

Archaeology of Martin's Hundred Ivor Noël Hume, Audrey Noël Hume, 2001 The Archaeology of Martin's Hundred explores the history and artifacts of a 20 000 acre tract of land in Tidewater Virginia one of the most extensive English enterprises in the New World Settled in 1618 all signs of its early occupation soon disappeared leaving no trace above ground More than three centuries later archaeological explorations uncovered tantalizing evidence of the people who had lived worked and died there in the seventeenth century Part I Interpretive Studies addresses four critical questions each with complex and sometimes unsatisfactory answers Who was Martin What was a hundred When did it begin and end Where was it located We then see how scientific detective work resulted in a reconstruction of what daily life must have been like in the strange and dangerous new land of colonial Virginia The authors use first person accounts documents of all sorts and the treasure trove of artifacts carefully unearthed from the soil of Martin s Hundred Part II Artifact Catalog illustrates and describes the principal artifacts in 110 figures The objects divided by category and by site range from ceramics which were the most readily and reliably datable to glass of which there was little to metalwork in all its varied aspects from arms and armor to rail splitters wedges and finally to tobacco pipes The Archaeology of Martin s Hundred is a fascinating account of the ways archaeological fieldwork laboratory examination and analysis based on lifelong study of documentary and artifact research came together to increase our knowledge of early colonial history Copublished with the Colonial Williamsburg Foundation     Code of Federal Regulations ,2002     Congressional Record United States.
