interventions using a single service for the transmission e.g. only SMS showed the most positive effect. Limiting factors of the evaluation however were the few numbers of RCTs, the heterogeneity of outcome measures and the fact that all included studies were conducted in middle income countries and mostly in urban areas.

Conclusions Although mHealth is still in its infancy it can emerge as an important tool for fighting NCDs in LAMICs. Therefore further support by governmental institutions for coordinating and promoting the development of the required tools as well as further research especially in low income economies with a focus on the evaluation of the long term effects of mHealth is needed.

Hintergrund Die Todesursachen in Entwicklungsländern verschieben sich kontinuierlich von übertragbaren hin zu nicht übertragbaren Krankheiten (NCDs). Deshalb werden in diesem systematischen Review gesundheitsbezogene Einflüsse von mobile Health (mHealth) Interventionen zur Bekämpfung von NCDs in Entwicklung und Schwellenländern (LAMICs) untersucht, um Einschätzungen zur bisherigen und Empfehlungen zur weiteren Entwicklung zu geben.

Methode Eine systematische Literatursuche in drei großen Datenbanken wurde durchgeführt, um randomisiert kontrollierte Studien (RCTs) von mHealth Interventionen in LAMICs zu identifizieren. Die ermittelten RCTs wurden hinsichtlich der Effekte von mHealth Interventionen auf gesundheitsbezogene Parameter ausgewertet.

Resultate Von insgesamt 733 erfassten Titeln wurden 6 RCTs mit 1850 Teilnehmern einbezogen. Es wurde festgestellt, dass mHealth einen positiven Einfluss auf klinische Resultate (Compliance-Raten sowie Lebensqualitätsbezogene Aspekte) hat. Zudem verbesserten sich im Rahmen der Interventionen weitere Faktoren wie das Vertrauen zwischen Patient und Arzt oder nächste der Patienten. Ferner wurde festgestellt, dass individualisierte Interventionen bessere Resultate als generalisierte Interventionen erzielen.

Limitierende Faktoren bei diesem Review waren die geringe Anzahl an RCTs, die Heterogenität der evaluierten Parameter und der Umstand, dass fast alle inkludierten Studien in urbanen Gebieten von Schwellenländern durchgeführt worden sind.

Schlussfolgerung mHealth kann zu einem wichtigen Instrument bei der Bekämpfung von NCDs in LAMICs heranwachsen. Dazu ist jedoch eine stärkere Unterstützung insbesondere von staatlichen Institutionen notwendig. Zudem müssen zukünftige Forschungen einen Fokus auf Langzeit Effekte insbesondere in einkommensschwachen Ländern haben.

Low-power Wearable Healthcare Sensors R. Simon Sherratt, Nilanjan Dey, 2020-12-29 Advances in technology have produced a range of on-body sensors and smartwatches that can be used to monitor a wearer's health with the objective to keep the user healthy. However, the real potential of such devices not only lies in monitoring but also in interactive communication with expert system based cloud services to offer personalized and real time healthcare advice that will enable the user to manage their health and over time to reduce expensive hospital admissions To meet this goal the research challenges for the next generation of wearable healthcare devices include the need to offer a wide range of sensing computing communication and human computer interaction methods all within a tiny device with limited resources and electrical power This Special Issue presents a collection of six papers on a wide range of research developments that highlight the specific challenges in creating the next generation of low power wearable healthcare sensors
