

Next, the koalas told him a funny joke.
Tiddalik still didn't laugh.

The animals were so confused that they didn't know what to do. They were still very thirsty.

Finally, the owl decided to give it a try. He danced and clucked and clucked until he had himself into a big knot.

Suddenly, Tiddalik's belly started to rumble, a big laugh roared up inside of him and all of the water came rushing out and filled up the billabong.

All the animals were happy that they had water to drink again, and Tiddalik learnt an important lesson about not being greedy.

Tiddalik the Frog

The following story is based on a traditional Aboriginal Dreaming story about a frog called Tiddalik.

Once upon a time in the Dreaming, there lived a frog called Tiddalik. Tiddalik was a giant, greedy frog as big as a mountain.
One day, Tiddalik became very thirsty.
He wandered down to the billabong, where there was plenty of water. Tiddalik was so thirsty that he began to drink and drink and drink until all the water in the billabong was gone.

When all the other animals came to the billabong for a drink, they discovered that there wasn't any water left. They were hot and thirsty. They knew that it was the greedy frog, Tiddalik, who had drunk all the water. They became very angry at him.
The animals knew that they had to get the water back somehow. If they wanted to get all the water out of Tiddalik and back onto the billabong, they would have to make him laugh. The wise wombat suggested that if he laughed, all the water would come out.
