

Three Skeleton Key

Foreshadowing

Foreshadowing is a literary device in which a writer gives an advance hint of what is to come later in the story. Foreshadowing often appears at the beginning of a story and helps the reader develop expectations about the coming events in a story.

Let's consider the foreshadowing in this story with the following questions.

1. "My most terrifying experience?" What expectations about the story do readers have after reading the opening line of the story?

---

---

2. How did the rock called Three Skeleton Key get its name?

---

---

3. "Three Skeleton Key, the small rock, which the light stood, bore a bad reputation." After reading this line, what feeling do readers have about the rock where the lighthouse is located?

---

---

4. "When I was a young man, not very long in the service, there was an opening in a lighthouse newly built on the coast of Guiana." Does this line hint that the narrator will survive the events in the story or not?

---

---

5. Itchoua nodded suddenly and looked at us sharply as he remarked: "See us? No doubt—if there is a crew aboard!" How does this line help the reader understand why the ship is sailing in such a strange way?

---

---

6. "By the time the ship, sailing from Rotterdam, had passed the Ostend light, the dogs were gone and never seen again. In twenty-four hours they had been overwhelmed, killed, and eaten by the rats." How does this information hint about what could happen if the rats reach the lighthouse?
