Celestial Shadows John Westfall, William Sheehan, 2014-11-19 Much of what is known about the universe came from the study of celestial shadows This book looks in detail at the way eclipses and other celestial shadows have given us amazing insights into the nature of the objects in our solar system and how they are even helping us discover and analyze planets that orbit stars other than our Sun A variety of eclipses transits and occultations of the moons of Jupiter and Saturn Pluto and its satellite Charon asteroids and stars have helped astronomers to work out their dimensions structures and shapes even the existence of atmospheres and structures of exoplanets Long before Columbus set out to reach the Far East by sailing West the curved shadow of the Earth on the Moon during a lunar eclipse revealed that we inhabit a round world a globe More recently comparisons of the sunlit and Earthlit parts of the Moon have been used to determine changes in the Earth's brightness as a way of monitoring possible effects in cloud coverage which may be related to global warming Shadows were used by the Greek mathematician Eratosthenes to work out the first estimate of the circumference of the Earth by Galileo to measure the heights of the lunar mountains and by eighteenth century astronomers to determine the scale of the Solar System itself Some of the rarest and most wonderful shadows of all are those cast onto Earth by the lovely Evening Star Venus as it goes between the Earth and the Sun These majestic transits of Venus occur at most two in a century after the 2012 transit there is not a chance to observe this phenomenon until 2117 while the more common sweep of a total solar eclipse creates one of the most dramatic and awe inspiring events of nature Though it may have once been a source of consternation or dread solar eclipses now lead thousands of amateur astronomers and eclipse chasers to travel the globe in order to experience the dramatic view under totality These phenomena are among the most spectacular available to observers and are given their full due in Westfall and Sheehan's comprehensive study The Solar System, Grades 5 - 8 Powers, Beaver, 2009-08-24 Connect students in grades 5 and up with science using The Solar System In this 80 page book students explore the solar system through activities covering sky domes a time zone finder measuring the sun's location eclipses and scaling The book includes historical perspectives solar system concepts and facts inquiry based activities challenge questions extension activities assessments literature connections curriculum resources a bibliography and materials lists This book supports National Science Education Standards and NCTM standards The Copernican

Cahokia, the Great Native American Metropolis Biloine W. Young, Melvin Leo Fowler, 2000 Five centuries before the Pilgrims landed in Massachusetts indigenous North Americans had already built a vast urban center on the banks of the Mississippi River where East St Louis is today This is the story of North America s largest archaeological site told through the lives personalities and conflicts of the men and women who excavated and studied it At its height the metropolis of Cahokia had twenty thousand inhabitants in the city center with another ten thousand in the outskirts Cahokia was a precisely planned community with a fortified central city and surrounding suburbs Its entire plan reflected the Cahokian s concept of the cosmos Its centerpiece Monk s Mound ten stories tall is the largest pre Columbian structure in North America with a base circumference larger than that of either the Great Pyramid of Khufu in Egypt or the Pyramid of the Sun at Teotihuacan in Mexico Nineteenth century observers maintained that the mounds too sophisticated for primitive Native American cultures had to have been created by a superior non Indian race perhaps even by survivors of the lost continent of Atlantis Melvin Fowler the dean of Cahokia archaeologists and Biloine Whiting Young tell an engrossing story of the struggle to protect the site from the encroachment of interstate highways and urban sprawl Now identified as a World Heritage Site by UNESCO and protected by the Illinois Historic Preservation Agency Cahokia serves as a reminder that the indigenous North Americans had a past of complexity and great achievement

Sticks, Stones, and Shadows Martin Isler, 2001 What do the pyramids of Egypt really represent What could have driven so many to so great and often so dangerous an effort Was the motivation religious or practical Illustrated with more than 300 photographs and drawings this book presents an original approach to the subject of pyramid building It reveals the connection between devices that served both a practical need for survival and a spiritual belief in gods and goddesses It examines Egyptian technologies and techniques from the origins of pyramid development to the step by step details of how the ground was leveled how the site was oriented and how the stone was raised and placed to meet at a distant point in the sky Here the author also asks and answers questions virtually ignored for the last century He discloses for example the ancient use of shadows now denigrated to the ornamental back yard sundial but once an important tool for telling the height of an object geographical directions the seasons of the year and the time of day He also reinterprets the ancient stretching of the cord ceremony which once was thought to have only religious significance but here is shown as the means of establishing the sides of a pyramid
