Reinventing Biology Lynda I. A. Birke, Ruth Hubbard, 1995 Much more than a book about animal welfare it explores how the scientific questions and answers would be different if biology operated from a paradigm of respect for the objects of study Thirteen contributions are arranged in four distinct sections individual topics vary extensively but each is first rate Choice Ruth Hubbard and Lynda Birke have asked an important question how would the practices of biology change if organisms were considered subjects with agency They have gathered an array of excellent scholars and a broad spectrum of perspectives this is a fresh and important question Londa Schiebinger Essays explore how the practice of biology could change if scientists treated the organisms they use in their experiments respectfully what it means to raise animals or plants as experimental resources what guides decisions about which animals to breed for experimental purposes The Heart of Healing Regina Rosenthal, 2013-02 The Heart of Healing is the perfect book for those seeking to deepen their understanding of healing Health care professionals and the chronically ill know that this is a life long journey of growth and development Page 4 of cover Elisabeth Kübler-Ross Richard Worth, 2009 Details the life of the doctor who has spent her life helping others to deal with death Parenting Through Illness Leigh Collins, Courtney Nathan, 2016-09-27 Parents get sick Their lives change radically and quickly This book offers immediate practical and experienced advice for adult family members and others responsible for the wellbeing of children when one parent has a serious illness The authors are both clinical social workers with years of training and time spent with children and families in crisis They establish a clear and authoritative voice while keeping a tone of encouragement throughout With its matter of fact language the book is organized to make it easy for parents to turn to the sections they most need when they need them Collins and Nathan keep their readers focused on the child in every situation while always supporting reasonable boundaries in positive self care for the adults who serve them The authors remind us that the task of parenting is hard enough even when Mom and Dad are healthy energetic and emotionally strong Add a diagnosis of cancer heart disease or a debilitating accident to the mix and parenting can quickly become overwhelming They acknowledge that anyone faced with a serious health crisis will be challenged daily to decide on treatment options to reorient priorities and to deal with the many stages of grief that humans suffer when confronted with survival issues They help us remember that one member's illness will affect the entire family system and explain how The book is unique It deals with any kind of serious illness not just cancer It explains how children of different age ranges commonly react to a parent's illness or other family crisis It suggests specific language in talking to children of different ages A full chapter is devoted to advantages and disadvantages of using information technology rarely covered in other books on this topic Based on extensive qualitative research Includes excerpts from interviews with parents and children coping with illness in the family Both authors rely on their training but also on early life experience in which they encountered traumatic family events As a teenager Courtney Nathan lost her mother to breast cancer Leigh Collins suffered a terrible accident as a young child and was confined in hospital for many weeks Their book reflects a dedication to other families who face such life altering circumstances The book has received wide endorsement from medical doctors and social service personnel who know the urgent need for this information for their patients and A Physician's Guide to Coping with Death and Dying Jan Swanson, Alan Cooper, 2005 Education about death and dying has been almost ignored in medical schools Recently however it has become increasingly obvious that the preferences of dying patients are being ignored leaving many patients to die lonely scared and in pain There is a growing realization that physicians can help dying patients achieve a more peaceful death and increased recognition that good end of life care is not just the province of specialized hospice physicians or nurses In A Physician's Guide to Coping with Death and Dying Jan Swanson and Alan Cooper a physician and a clinical psychologist with many years of experience offer insights to help medical students residents physicians nurses and others become more aware of the different stages in the dying process and learn how to communicate more effectively with patients and their families They also discuss the ways physicians and other caregivers can learn to reduce their own stress levels and avoid the risk of burnout allowing them to achieve balance in their lives and be more effective professionally The authors use case examples and thought provoking exercises to provide a personal learning experience A Physician's Guide to Coping with Death and Dying includes an extensive bibliography and a unique web resource section with contacts to many organizations working with patients suffering from life threatening illnesses Nursing as Therapy Richard McMahon, Alan Pearson, 2013-11-11 Over the past 20 years nursing has begun to rediscover some of its basic truths which have become obscured because of the rise in technology and medical knowledge this century One of these basic truths is the concern of this book that intelligent sensitive nursing does make a difference to the consumers of health care Like most essential truths this seems almost too obvious to be stated Nevertheless many nurses have become increasingly aware of a commonly held view that getting better or staying healthy is largely dependent upon the intervention of or monitoring by medical practitioners and paramedical therapists together with the technology they use and that nurses merely carry out the orders of such workers and keep things in order An apt analogy frequently used is that of the air journey The point of the journey is to get from A to B and is largely dependent upon the aeroplane i.e. the technology in health care and the crew in the cockpit i.e.
