

The Cold War Heats Up

1. As you read the passage, fill in the information you discover about the Soviet-American agreement below.

	What the Soviets Wanted	What the Americans Wanted
1. Would it make any sense to build space programs and rockets?	That U.S. support them economically (training, fuel, etc.)	Not really.
2. Would anyone believe that the Soviets had really accomplished this feat?	They would certainly gain respect and prestige that way. They had already achieved victory in the world's boldest challenge: the war.	They were worried about a loss of leadership among nations in U.S. knowledge that John F. Kennedy believed in peace through strength, planned progress, and freedom of movement through peaceful means.
3. Would anyone challenge the feat?	Not if the Americans were not.	Others might be tempted to challenge the achievement and the leadership.
4. Would the U.S. believe that the Soviets really could launch nuclear missiles?	Yes. The government could not deny that the U.S. considered this likely.	The American public was skeptical and would not take as much notice of the claims.

2. Suppose the agreement simply set up the program as announced.

What would the Soviets make of this?

Why would they be disappointed about the deal?

What would Kennedy, the president, be disappointed about without the Soviet U.S. agreement? How did you think he'd feel about it?
