The Rand Military Operations Simulation Facility G. Donohue, Rand Corporation, 1986. RAND's Military Operations Simulation Facility (MOSF) is a sophisticated gaming and simulation laboratory that supports highly interactive military analysis of strategic and tactical problems. One of the purposes of the MOSF is to maintain various types of military simulations and requisite databases e.g. geographic and terrain data, target lists, military orders of battle, and road and rail networks. The centralized nature of the facility and its architecture enable the analyst to exploit a rich set of models and databases with relatively little start-up cost. This Note provides an overview of the features of the MOSF for users of the facility and for those who are interested in the MOSF's general capabilities.

Machine Dreams Philip Mirowski, 2002. This is the first cross-over book into the history of science written by an historian of economics. It shows how history of technology can be integrated with the history of economic ideas. The analysis combines Cold War history with the history of postwar economics in America and later elsewhere, revealing that the Pax Americana had much to do with abstruse and formal doctrines such as linear programming and game theory. It links the literature on cyborg to economics, an element missing in literature to date. The treatment further calls into question the idea that economics has been immune to postmodern currents, arguing that neoclassical economics has participated in the deconstruction of the integral self. Finally, it argues for an alliance of computational and institutional themes and challenges the widespread impression that there is nothing else besides American neoclassical economic theory left standing after the demise of Marxism.

The Berlin Group and the Philosophy of Logical Empiricism Nikolay Milkov, Volker Peckhaus, 2013-02-26. The Berlin Group for scientific philosophy was active between 1928 and 1933 and was closely related to the Vienna Circle. In 1930, the leaders of the two groups, Hans Reichenbach and Rudolf Carnap, launched the journal Erkenntnis. However, between the Berlin Group and the Vienna Circle, there was not only close relatedness but also significant difference. Above all, while the Berlin Group explored philosophical problems of the actual practice of science, the Vienna Circle, closely following Wittgenstein, was more interested in problems of the language of science. The book includes the first discussion ever in three chapters on Walter Dubislav's logic and philosophy. Two chapters are devoted to another author scarcely explored in English: Kurt Grelling and another one to Paul Oppenheim who became an important figure in the philosophy of science in the USA in the 1940s 1960s Finally the book discusses the precursor of the Nord German tradition of scientific philosophy Jacob Friedrich Fries The Daily Washington Law Reporter ,1895 Vols for 1902 include decisions of the District of Columbia Court of Appeals and various other courts of the District of Columbia Official Gazette of the United States Patent Office United States.
