Pervasive Computing Handbook Uwe Hansmann, Lothar Merk, Martin S. Nicklous, Thomas Stober, 2013-04-17 Our future is pervasive. We were not meant to be chained to our computers in our Dilbert cubicles. Having millions of white-collar workers commute to work every day to sit for eight hours chained to their computer is something right out of a Kafka novel. Before the cell phone, I can remember sitting at my desk waiting for calls to be returned. If I was traveling, I made sure that I was all set up to place calls from public phone booths. Today, I can't imagine having to look for a telephone booth. I can be reached on my tri-band digital cell phone anywhere in the world. Instantly, I also have a PDA that I carry everywhere. My PDA instantly synchronizes with my desktop computer, which in turn connects to a larger network of computers and web portals. The world is my neighborhood. Soon, digital devices will be working together hand in hand thanks to technologies such as Bluetooth. This includes devices such as cell phones, digital cameras, PDAs, and desktop computers. The Wireless Internet is the catalyst for the convergence of digital communications, computing, and rich media. This is a mega trend that we call Pervasive Computing. What Pervasive Computing means to each and every one of us is the ability to take our own worlds of personal and business information with us wherever we go. Now we can always be in touch with our families, affinity groups, and co-workers.
