A Match on Dry Grass Mark R. Warren, Karen L. Mapp, The Community Organizing and School Reform Project, 2011-10-03 The persistent failure of public schooling in low income communities constitutes one of our nation's most pressing civil rights and social justice issues Many school reformers recognize that poverty racism and a lack of power held by these communities undermine children's education and development but few know what to do about it A Match on Dry Grass argues that community organizing represents a fresh and promising approach to school reform as part of a broader agenda to build power for low income communities and address the profound social inequalities that affect the education of children Based on a comprehensive national study the book presents rich and compelling case studies of prominent organizing efforts in Chicago New York City Los Angeles Denver San Jose and the Mississippi Delta The authors show how organizing groups build the participation and leadership of parents and students so they can become powerful actors in school improvement efforts They also identify promising ways to overcome divisions and create the collaborations between educators and community residents required for deep and sustainable school reform Identifying the key processes that create strong connections between schools and communities Warren Mapp and their collaborators show how community organizing builds powerful relationships that lead to the transformational change necessary to advance educational equity and a robust democracy

Willful Defiance Mark R. Warren, 2022 The story of how Black and Brown parents students and members of low income communities of color organized to dismantle the school to prison pipeline in their local schools and built a movement that spread across the country In Willful Defiance Mark R Warren documents how Black and Brown parents students and low income communities of color organized to dismantle the school to prison pipeline in their local schools and built an intersectional movement that spread across the country Examining organizing processes in Mississippi Los Angeles Chicago and other localities he shows how relatively small groups of community members built the power to win policy changes to reduce suspensions and expulsions by combining deep local organizing with resources from the national movement As a result over the course of twenty years the movement to combat the school to prison pipeline resulted in falling suspension rates across the country and began to make gains in reducing police presence in schools especially in places where there have been sustained organizing and advocacy efforts In documenting the struggle organizers waged to build national alliances led by community groups and people most impacted by injustice rather than Washington based professional advocates Warren offers a new model for movements that operate simultaneously at local state and national levels while primarily oriented to support and spread local organizing In doing so he argues for the need to rethink national social justice movements as interconnected local struggles whose victories are lifted and spread In the end the book highlights lessons from the school to prison pipeline movement for organizers educators policymakers and a broader public seeking to transform deep seated and systemic racism in public schools and the broader society
