Francis B. Nyamnjuh

Questce Que Lhumain:

L'humain en devenir Michel J.F. Dubois, 2020-06-01 Les descriptions actuelles du devenir de l'humanité laissent deviner que le problème réside dans notre relation à la technique. Ce qu'elle nous apporte et nous enlève, ce que nous sommes avec ou sans elle. L'humain en devenir relate la relation que nous avons avec la technique. Nous ne pouvons plus nous en passer mais nous voudrions l'oublier et pouvoir envisager un monde psychosocial qui n'ait rien de sociotechnique sans connaître l'origine de la technique, de son développement, de son intrication dès le commencement avec ce qui sera l'espace humaine. Cet ouvrage analyse ainsi cette trajectoire grâce à laquelle l'espace qui deviendra l'humain, toujours en devenir, ne peut plus être pensé séparément de la technique et ce malgré 2 600 ans de philosophies qui ont voulu l'écarter. Il expose des successions de choix techniques dans une des nombreuses lignes des hominides qui ont conduit l'humain incapable de vivre sans technique.

C'est l'homme qui fait l'homme Francis B. Nyamnjoh, 2015 The idea that human beings are inextricably bound to one another is at the heart of this book about African agency especially drawing on the African philosophy Ubuntu with its roots in human sociality and inclusivity. Ubuntu's precepts and workings are severely tested in these times of rapid change and multiple responsibilities. Africans negotiate their social existence between urban and rural life, their continental and transcontinental distances and all the market forces that now impinge with relationships and loyalties placed in question. Between ideal and reality, dreams and schemes, how is Ubuntu actualized, misappropriated and endangered? The book unearths the intrigues and contradictions that go with inclusivity in Africa. Basing his argument on the ideals of trust, conviviality and support embodied in the concept of Ubuntu, Francis Nyamnjoh demonstrates how the pursuit of personal success and even self-aggrandizement challenges these ideals, thus leading to discord in social relationships. Nyamnjoh uses a popular Ivorian drama with the same title to substantiate life-world realities and more importantly to demonstrate that new forms of expression from popular drama to fiction thicken and enrich the ethnographic component in current anthropology.

Lifelong Education Paul Bélanger, Ettore Gelpi, 1995-05-31 The basic aim of this special issue is to focus on the profound change of tendency in education that is taking place at both the national and international level At a time when education and lifelong learning are increasingly merging into one process it is important to examine the ways in which educational policies and practices are evolving Consequently we invited a variety of contributors both men and women coming from different regions and encompassing both research and practice to identify significant phenomena and trends that are indicative of the ways in which systems of education are responding to new social and cultural demands We asked our contributors to show how educational reality in different countries is no longer confined within the temporal and spatial limits of institutional education to indicate how models of educational practice are changing to examine the extent to which the traditional cycles of human life are shifting their boundaries and to describe how these changes are manifesting themselves in different national contexts in both South and North We also asked our authors to pose questions raised by this educational revolution We have included 17 contributions some of the authors analysing particular national situations others drawing questions and observations from their own experiences or taking a searching look at education from the perspective of a practical involvement in social issues or from a background of research into popular arts and traditions
