Industrial Hygiene Control of Airborne Chemical Hazards William Popendorf, 2006-05-15 Do you need guidelines for choosing a substitute organic solvent that is safer to use Do you need an effective cheap but perhaps temporary way to reduce exposures before you can convince your employer to spend money on a long term or more reliable solution Do you need information about local exhaust ventilation or personal protective equipment like respirators and gloves Industrial Hygiene Control of Airborne Chemical Hazards provides the answers to these questions and more Science based and quantitative the book introduces methods for controlling exposures in diverse settings focusing squarely on airborne chemical hazards It bridges the gap between existing knowledge of physical principles and their modern application with a wealth of recommendations techniques and tools accumulated by generations of IH practitioners to control chemical hazards Provides a unique comprehensive tool for facing the challenges of controlling chemical hazards in the workplace Although William Popendorf has written the book at a fundamental level he assumes the reader has some experience in science and math as well as in manufacturing or other work settings with chemical hazards but is inexperienced in the selection design implementation or management of chemical exposure control systems Where the book is quantitative of course there are lots of formulae but in general the author avoids vague notation and long derivations

Bilingualism and cognitive control Judith F. Kroll, Ingrid Christoffels, Teresa Bajo, Research on bilingual language processing reveals an important role for control processes that enable bilinguals to negotiate the potential competition across their two languages The requirement for control that enables bilinguals to speak the intended language and to switch between languages has also been suggested to confer a set of cognitive consequences for executive function that extend beyond language to domain general cognitive skills. Many recent studies have examined aspects of how cognitive control is manifest during bilingual language processing, how individual differences in cognitive resources influence second language learning and performance, and the range of cognitive tasks that appear to be influenced by bilingualism. However, not all studies demonstrate a bilingual advantage in all tasks that tap into cognitive control. Indeed, many questions are unanswered that are critical to our understanding of bilingual control. What aspects of cognitive control are enhanced for proficient bilinguals? How are individual differences in cognitive control related to language acquisition proficiency or professional translation skill? How does the language environment affect concurrent processing? How exactly does language control come about in tasks such as speech production switching between languages or translation? When and how does inhibitory processing support language control? The focus of this Research Topic is on executive control and bilingualism. The goal is to have a broad scope that includes all of these issues. We seek empirical contributions using different methodologies including behavioral, computational, and neuroscience approaches. We also welcome theoretical contributions that provide detailed discussion of models or mechanisms that account for the relationship between bilingualism and cognitive control. We aim to provide a platform for new contributions that represent a state of the art overview of approaches to cognitive control in bilingualism. We hope that this Research Topic will enable the field to formulate more precise hypotheses and causal models on the relation between individual differences, cognitive control, and bilingual language processing.
