Chariton Review 41.1 Truman State University Press, 2018-06-30 Chariton Review Spring Summer 2018 Nostalgia's Thread Randall R. Freisinger, 2009-11 Accessible and engaging the poems in Randall R Freisinger's Nostalgia's Thread are provocative reconsiderations of the American experience as depicted in ten of Norman Rockwell's best known paintings Arguably the only serious collection of poems inspired by Norman Rockwell's images they were conceived just prior to the attacks of September 11 2001 and written in their wake These poems remind us that visual art is never static the beholder's eye never innocent They bear witness to the fact that each cultural era must inevitably reinterpret its rich artistic inheritance within the context of its current collective experience The publication of Nostalgia's Thread coincides with the 40th anniversary of the Norman Rockwell Museum as well as recent critical reappraisals of Rockwell's as an illustrator and artist These poems in keeping with the venerable centuries old tradition of ekphrasis give eloquent voice to Rockwell's art but they refuse to remain fixed within the paintings frames Instead the poems explore alternative narratives setting aside simplistic readings of the images and opening them up to a more nuanced response With unflinching honesty and deep compassion these poems present a personal and collective past which is both comforting and disturbing both Nostalgia's Thread and the barbed wire of memory
