

1. The experiments with nutritional mutants in Neurospora by Beadle and Tatum provided evidence that—
 - a. bread mold can be grown in a lab on minimal media
 - b. X-rays can damage DNA
 - c. cells need enzymes
 - d. genes specify enzymes

The correct answer is d—

- A. Answer a is incorrect. The ability of mold to grow on bread was not a new observation. Beadle and Tatum's research provided new insights into the relationship between genes and proteins.

The correct answer is d—

- B. Answer b is incorrect. The ability of X-rays to damage DNA was already known. Beadle and Tatum used this fact when they generated nutritional mutants.

The correct answer is d—

- C. Answer c is incorrect. The function of enzymes in cell metabolism was already known. Beadle and Tatum used existing knowledge about the biochemical pathway of arginine synthesis in their experiment.

The correct answer is d—genes specify enzymes

- D. Answer d is correct. The concept of one-gene/one-polypeptide was based on the results of Beadle and Tatum's experiments.

2. What is the central dogma of molecular biology?
 - a. DNA is the genetic material
 - b. Information passes from DNA to protein
 - c. Information passes from DNA to RNA to protein
 - d. One gene encodes only one polypeptide

The correct answer is c—

- A. Answer a is incorrect. The central dogma refers to the direction of information flow in a cell. DNA is the genetic material; however, this does not explain the relationship between DNA and protein.

The correct answer is c—

- B. Answer b is incorrect. The information encoded in the DNA is converted to protein; however, there is an intermediate step in the flow of information that requires a molecule of RNA.

The correct answer is c—Information passes from DNA to RNA to protein

- C. Answer c is correct. The flow of information in a cell moves from DNA to protein by way of RNA.

The correct answer is c—

- D. Answer d is incorrect. The central dogma refers to the direction of information flow in a cell, not to the relationship between genes and proteins.

Picturing Animals in Britain, 1750-1850 Diana Donald, 2007-01-01 From fine art paintings by such artists as Stubbs and Landseer to zoological illustrations and popular prints a vast array of animal images was created in Britain during the century from 1750 to 1850 This highly original book investigates the rich meanings of these visual representations as well as the ways in which animals were actually used and abused What Diana Donald discovers in this fascinating study is a deep and unresolved ambivalence that lies at the heart of human attitudes toward animals The author brings to light dichotomies in human thinking about animals throughout this key period awestruck with the beauty and spirit of wild animals people nevertheless desired to capture and tame them the belief that other species are inferior was firmly held yet at the same time animals in stories and fables were given human attributes though laws against animal cruelty were introduced the overworking of horses and the allure of sport hunting persisted Animals are central in cultural history Donald concludes and compelling questions about them then and now remain unanswered
