How You Can Profit from Credit Cards Curtis E. Arnold,2008-06-06 Who would not be interested in getting an interest free loan for 12 months for any type of purchase just for taking a few minutes to complete a credit card balance transfer offer Or a free round trip airline ticket twice a year just for making purchases on a rebate card Or lowering their insurance premiums by hundreds of dollars a year just by raising their credit score Obviously just about every consumer is interested in saving money and getting freebies Hence the universal appeal of this book cannot be overstated Today the average American household has 12.7 credit cards. Banks maximize their profits by nickel and diming and outsmarting their cardholders that's why credit cards are their most profitable product. Banks spend billions enticing consumers with rebates, freebies, low introductory rate offers, and airline miles. Learn how to take full advantage of these offers without paying for them through brutally high interest rates, fees, and penalties. Arnold offers specific advice targeted to young consumers who are being aggressively targeted by credit card marketers, retirees facing credit discrimination, Americans recovering from bankruptcy or other debt problems, and even consumers with great credit. You'll learn the techniques he has personally used to escape credit card debt, creatively finance his wedding, car, and home purchases, and earn thousands in credit card perks every year.

Credit Card and Debt Management Scott Bilker, 1996. Which credit card is REALLY offering the best deal? How do you refinance debt using existing credit cards? Why is it sometimes better to use credit cards instead of a home equity loan? How long will it take to pay back ALL your debt? The answers to these and many more questions are contained in this powerful guide to consumer credit management. Using numerous real-life examples, the reader is shown how to lower monthly payments, save money on finance charges, and reduce the interest rates of loans.
