Securing A Place For Reading In Composition Ellen C Carillo:

Securing a Place for Reading in Composition Ellen C. Carillo, 2015-01-15 Securing a Place for Reading in Composition addresses the dissonance between the need to prepare students to read not just write complex texts and the lack of recent scholarship on reading writing connections Author Ellen C Carillo argues that including attention to reading practices is crucial for developing more comprehensive literacy pedagogies Students who can read actively and reflectively will be able to work successfully with the range of complex texts they will encounter throughout their post secondary academic careers and beyond Considering the role of reading within composition from both historical and contemporary perspectives Carillo makes recommendations for the productive integration of reading instruction into first year writing courses She details a mindful reading framework wherein instructors help students cultivate a repertoire of approaches upon which they consistently reflect as they apply them to various texts This metacognitive frame allows students to become knowledgeable and deliberate about how they read and gives them the opportunity to develop the skills useful for moving among reading approaches in mindful ways thus preparing them to actively and productively read in courses and contexts outside first year composition Securing a Place for Reading in Composition also explores how the field of composition might begin to effectively address reading including conducting research on reading revising outcome statements and revisiting the core courses in graduate programs It will be of great interest to writing program administrators and other compositionists and their graduate students

The Radical Case for Teaching Skim Reading in First-Year Writing Ellen C. Carillo, 2025-10-15 The Radical Case for Teaching Skim Reading in First Year Writing encourages faculty particularly in writing studies to check internal biases toward deep reading and teach skim reading in first year writing courses Written by Ellen C Carillo who has previously published on the importance of teaching deep reading this small book is a controversial prompt for further discussion and exploration Data from studies of the lived experiences of undergraduates indicate that students do not need deep reading practices in the majority of their classes across the disciplines and moreover that students succeed in their classes by skim reading Rather than imagining an idealized set of circumstances that allow for sustained deep reading as does a great deal of the scholarship on reading in writing studies The Radical Case for Teaching Skim Reading in First Year Writing argues for teaching students reading practices that will support their success in their college writing assignments rather than those strategies the field believes should support their success In our information landscape and our fragile democracy encouraging skimming as opposed to deep reading may seem like a gamble this very tendency toward the quick rather than the critical has undoubtedly contributed to the current crisis of mass misinformation However teaching students to use skim reading as a strategic tool for purposeful engagement and efficient yet thoughtful information filtering better equips them to navigate the rapidly changing information landscape and manage the fast paced flow of content from diverse media sources

The Framework for Success in Postsecondary Writing Nicholas N. Behm, Sherry

Rankins-Robertson,2017-03-03 Illustrates the widespread applications of the Framework for Success in Postsecondary Writing especially the eight habits of mind in helping students to be successful not only in postsecondary writing courses but also in four arenas of life academic professional civic and personal The Case for Critical Literacy Alice S. Horning,2024-08-15 The Case for Critical Literacy explores the history of reading within writing studies and lays the foundation for understanding the impact of this critical yet often untaught skill Every measure of students reading comprehension whether digital or analog demonstrates that between 50 and 80 percent of students are unable to capture the substance of a full discussion or evaluate material for authority accuracy currency relevancy appropriateness and bias This book examines how college level instruction reached this point and provides pedagogical strategies that writing instructors and teachers can use to address the problem Alice Horning makes the case for the importance of critical reading in the teaching of writing with intentionality and imagination while sharing glimpses of her own personal history with reading and writing Horning provides the context for understanding what college faculty face in their classrooms and offers a history of critical literacy that explains why to date it has mostly neglected or ignored the diverse statuses of students reading challenges The Case for Critical Literacy explores actionable options to better meet students literacy needs College and university faculty especially writing instructors will benefit from an understanding of what has happened in the field and what needs to change Reading Across the Disciplines Karen Manarin,2022-05-03 Reading Across the Disciplines offers a collection of twelve essays detailing a range of approaches to dealing with students reading needs at the college level Transforming reading in higher education requires more than individual faculty members working on SoTL projects in their particular fields Teachers need to consider reading across the disciplines In this collection authors from Australia and North America teaching in a variety of disciplines explore reading in undergraduate courses doctoral seminars and faculty development activities By paying attention to the particular classroom and placing those observations in conversation with scholarly literature they create new knowledge about reading in higher education from disciplinary and cross disciplinary perspectives Reading Across the Disciplines demonstrates how existing research about reading can be applied to specific classroom contexts offering models for faculty members whose own research interests may lie elsewhere but who believe in the importance of reading Improving Outcomes Diane Kelly-Riley,Norbert Elliot,2020-12-01 Students thrive when they are exposed to a variety of disciplinary genres and their lives and our institutions are enriched by improving their writing outcomes Taking account of evolving research writing in the disciplines and demographic and institutional shifts in higher education this volume imagines new ways to improve writing outcomes by broadening the focus of assessment to wider issues of humanity and society The essays by contributors from diverse fields from writing studies to nursing engineering and architecture demonstrate innovative classroom practices and curricular design that place fairness and the situatedness of language at the center of writing instruction Contributors reflect on a wide range of examples from a disability as insight model to reckoning with postcolonial legacies and the essays consider a variety of institutions classrooms and types of assessment including culturally responsive assessment and peer feedback in digital environments

Reconstructing Response to Student Writing Dan Melzer, 2023-08-07 In Reconstructing Response to Student Writing Dan Melzer makes the argument that writing instructors should shift the construct so that peer response and student self assessment are more central than teacher response Presenting the results of a national study of teacher and peer response and student self assessment at institutions of higher education across the United States Melzer analyzes teacher and peer response to over 1 000 pieces of student writing as well as 128 student portfolio reflection essays He draws on his analysis and on a comprehensive review of the literature on response to introduce a constructivist heuristic for response aimed at both composition instructors and instructors across disciplines Melzer argues that teachers and researchers should focus less on teacher response to individual pieces of student writing and more on engaging in dialogue with student self assessment and peer response focusing on growth and transfer rather than products and grades Reconstructing Response to Student Writing especially when taken together with Melzer's previous book Assignments across the Curriculum provides a comprehensive and large scale view of college writing and responding across the curriculum in the United States

Teaching Readers in Post-Truth America Ellen C. Carillo, 2018-10-01 Teaching Readers in Post Truth America shows how postsecondary teachers can engage with the phenomenon of post truth Drawing on research from the fields of educational and cognitive psychology human development philosophy and education Ellen C Carillo demonstrates that teaching critical reading is a strategic and targeted response to the current climate Readers in this post truth culture are under unprecedented pressure to interpret an overwhelming quantity of texts in many forms including speeches news articles position papers and social media posts In response Carillo describes pedagogical interventions designed to help students become more metacognitive about their own reading and in turn better equipped to respond to texts in a post truth culture Teaching Readers in Post Truth America is an invaluable source of support for writing instructors striving to prepare their students to resist post truth rhetoric and participate in an information rich divisive democratic society

The Hidden Inequities in Labor-Based Contract Grading Ellen C. Carillo, 2021-11-01 Current Arguments in Composition Series The Hidden

Inequities in Labor Based Contract Grading intervenes in the increasingly popular practice of labor based grading by expanding the scope of this assessment practice to include students who are disabled and multiply marginalized Through the lens of disability studies the book critiques the assumption that labor is a neutral measure by which to assess students and explores how labor based grading contracts put certain groups of students at a disadvantage Ellen C Carillo offers engagement based grading contracts as an alternative that would provide a more equitable assessment model for students of color those with disabilities and students who are multiply marginalized This short book explores the history of labor based grading contracts reviews the scholarship on this assessment tool highlights the ways in which it normalizes labor as an unbiased tool and demonstrates how to extend the conversation in new and generative ways both in research and in classrooms Carillo encourages instructors to reflect on their assessment practices by demonstrating how even assessment methods that are designed through a social justice lens may unintentionally privilege some students over others
