Songs Mountain West Poetry Series:

Songs Derek Henderson, 2014-11-15 The poems in Derek Henderson's Songs are translations of a film cycle of the same name shot by American filmmaker Stan Brakhage 1933-2003 to document his and his family's life in Colorado in the mid 1960s Where Brakhage's films provide a subjective visual record of his experience bewildered by the eye these poems let language bewilder the space a reader enters through the ear Henderson tenders the visual experience of Brakhage's films films of the domestic and the wild the private and political the local and global into language that insists on the ultimate incapacity of language or of image to fully document the comfort and the violence of intimacy Songs expresses the ecstasy we so often experience in the company of family but it just as urgently attests to ecstasy's turbulent threat to family's stability Like Brakhage's films Henderson's poems carry across into language and find family in every moment even the broken ones all of them abounding in hope

Poetry and Painting in Song China Alfreda Murck, 2020-10-26 Throughout the history of imperial China the educated elite used various means to criticize government policies and actions During the Song dynasty 960-1278 some members of this elite found an elegant and subtle means of dissent landscape painting By examining literary archetypes the titles of paintings contemporary inscriptions and the historical context Alfreda Murck shows that certain paintings expressed strong political opinions some transparent others deliberately concealed She argues that the coding of messages in seemingly innocuous paintings was an important factor in the growing respect for painting among the educated elite and that the capacity of painting's systems of reference to allow scholars to express dissent with impunity contributed to the art's vitality and longevity

Escape Velocity Bonnie Arning, 2017-02-01 From the moment of a marriage's heated inception to its period of luminous crowding and onward into distance and darkness Bonnie Arning's Escape Velocity asks if it's possible to exist outside the only universe we've ever known In modes both lyric and narrative we are given a peephole into the height and decline of a marriage that begins beneath the moving lights of Las Vegas Nevada and traverses the devastating terrain of gambling miscarriage infidelity and violence Arning gives voice to divergent aspects of love and violence through her use of math problems erasures dictionary entries structured stanzas and sprawling free verse This multiplicity of forms comes together to explore everything from pop culture references of domestic violence to cultural notions of victims and victimhood However dark collectively these poems tell a love story an acceptance of our capability to love those who hurt us but also the love of self required to slowly and steadily reach the velocity to be everleaving In the tradition of Eavan Boland and Louise Glück Arning wrestles down and examines the terrible without flinching We journey with her engrossed by each difficult truth a precipice near which we are both terrified to stand and transfixed by its unnerving insistence on beauty

A Lamp Brighter than Foxfire Andrew S. Nicholson, 2015-11-15 In Andrew S. Nicholson's A Lamp Brighter than Foxfire what is most alive is color that which gives itself freely generously Follow the hopeful as they green the day My Garage Fills with an Ever Increasing Number of Dandelions Threaded throughout with Genesis wherein Jacob wrestles an angel this gorgeous debut collection builds a ladder firmly rooted here in sun and earth in varying and multiple shades of orange in trials of father and son in books and paintings in abandoned casinos in countries far from home and or in the sound of a door closing Nicholson's poems come from a man standing by himself in what George Oppen called the shipwreck of the singular which includes everybody I'm moved by the luminous generosity the moral clarity of this work A Lamp Brighter than Foxfire is news that will stay news Claudia Keelan author of The Devotion Field Missing Her and O Heart Who doesn't nurse a secret love asks Andrew S. Nicholson in visionary poems that reveal secret worlds cradled inside this one Whether considering the casinos of Las Vegas a fresco in Pompeii or scenes from the Hebrew Bible the poet endures one of desire's more fraught paradoxes its unchanging ability to bring change to turn the known into the unknown These poems bravely attend to such transformations the way Jacob the book's patron saint wrestles with the angel lifting all the flesh that he can lose I admire this poet who knows that blessing doesn't arrive without loss who remembers I was loved once Beneath that love a kindness took root The same sweet feeling lingers long after this book is closed Dear reader savor it

Brian Teare Andrew S. Nicholson's A Lamp Brighter than Foxfire is a gorgeous book His graceful playful poems enchant us I try to make out the stranger's face but he's shrinking a melting gray blur an ever smaller thorn and transform us Sink into
