Communities in Action National Academies of Sciences, Engineering, and Medicine, Health and Medicine Division, Board on Population Health and Public Health Practice, Committee on Community-Based Solutions to Promote Health Equity in the United States, 2017-04-27 In the United States some populations suffer from far greater disparities in health than others Those disparities are caused not only by fundamental differences in health status across segments of the population but also because of inequities in factors that impact health status so called determinants of health Only part of an individual s health status depends on his or her behavior and choice community wide problems like poverty unemployment poor education inadequate housing poor public transportation interpersonal violence and decaying neighborhoods also contribute to health inequities as well as the historic and ongoing interplay of structures policies and norms that shape lives When these factors are not optimal in a community it does not mean they are intractable such inequities can be mitigated by social policies that can shape health in powerful ways Communities in Action Pathways to Health Equity seeks to delineate the causes of and the solutions to health inequities in the United States This report focuses on what communities can do to promote health equity what actions are needed by the many and varied stakeholders that are part of communities or support them as well as the root causes and structural barriers that need to be overcome Promoting Inclusion in Education Abroad Nick J.

Gozik, Heather Barclay Hamir, 2023-07-03 Co published with While education abroad including studying volunteering researching and interning abroad is increasingly emphasized as a critical factor in preparing undergraduates for a globally interconnected world diversifying the pool of participants in such activities has proven challenging Framed within the concept of inclusive excellence with the objective of promoting diversity inclusion and equity in higher education as foundational to educational excellence the contributors present research and practices that have been proven successful in improving participation among groups of students traditionally underrepresented in education abroad Broader participation in education abroad programming has been a perennial concern at numerous higher education institutions in the U S having prompted countless discussions in professional organizations and across campuses among faculty staff and students. Many have come to recognize that overseas opportunities are no longer a luxury and instead are a necessity for job seekers entering a more diverse globally interconnected workplace. The volume offers a combination of research based chapters and case studies from leading experts on the barriers that disproportionately impact specific groups of students including students with disabilities, first generation college students, undocumented students, racial and ethnic minorities, science, technology, engineering, and mathematics (STEM) majors, and males. The authors illuminate the issues which may inhibit education abroad participation from individual to institutional and present strategies reflecting a broad range of institutional contexts, resources, and needs. While there has been significant discussion and action to promote broader inclusion in education abroad, this is the first volume focusing on research and practice to achieve these ends and is intended as a critical resource for practitioners and scholars alike.
