Pythagorean Theorem

Learning Targets:

1. Use the Pythagorean Theorem and the Converse.
2. Apply the Pythagorean Theorem to solve problems.

Pythagorean Theorem: In a right triangle, the square of the length of the hypotenuse is equal to the sum of the squares of the lengths of the legs.

Pythagoras was a Greek philosopher, mathematician, and astronomer who lived around 570–495 BCE. He is best known for his discovery of the Pythagorean Theorem, which states that in a right triangle, the square of the length of the hypotenuse is equal to the sum of the squares of the lengths of the legs.

Pythagoras also taught that the universe is made of numbers. He believed that the Pythagorean Theorem is a reflection of the harmony of the universe.

3. Converse of the Pythagorean Theorem: If the square of the length of the hypotenuse is equal to the sum of the squares of the lengths of the legs, then the triangle is a right triangle.

Voss, David N. Perkins, Judith W. Segal, 2012-11-12 Based on extensive reasoning acquisition research this volume provides theoretical and empirical considerations of the reasoning that occurs during the course of everyday personal and professional activities Of particular interest is the text's focus on the question of how such reasoning takes place during school activities and how students acquire reasoning skills Applying Standards-Based Constructivism Pat Flynn, Paul Vermette, Don Mesibov, 2013-09-27 This book provides teachers with practical ways of constructing lessons that will engage students and help them develop personal responsibility for their own learning State learning standards and related core curricula require students to demonstrate what they know and understand Students cannot learn to demonstrate their understanding if they sit passively The authors call for constructivist practices which recognize the important role played by standards and student accountability and which also acknowledge the practical need for lecture in an appropriate context This book also shows the links between constructivism and differentiated instruction and other approaches to teaching and learning Philosophy of Mathematics, 2009-07-08 One of the most striking features of mathematics is the fact that we are much more certain about the mathematical knowledge we have than about what mathematical knowledge is knowledge of Are numbers sets functions and groups physical entities of some kind Are they objectively existing objects in some non physical mathematical realm Are they ideas that are present only in the mind Or do mathematical truths not involve referents of any kind It is these kinds of questions that have encouraged philosophers and mathematicians alike to focus their attention on issues in the philosophy of mathematics Over the centuries a number of reasonably well defined positions about the nature of mathematics have been developed and it is these positions both historical and current that are surveyed in the current volume Traditional theories Platonism Aristotelianism Kantianism as well as dominant modern theories logicism formalism constructivism fictionalism etc are all analyzed and evaluated Leading edge research in related fields set theory computability theory probability theory paraconsistency is also discussed The result is a handbook that not only provides a comprehensive overview of recent developments but that also serves as an indispensable resource for anyone wanting to learn about current developments in the philosophy of mathematics Comprehensive coverage of all main theories in the philosophy of mathematics Clearly written expositions of fundamental ideas and concepts Definitive discussions by leading researchers in the field Summaries of leading edge research in related fields set theory computability theory probability theory paraconsistency are also included of the workbook introduces taking a square root as the opposite operation to squaring a number The lesson includes both applying a guess and check method and using a calculator to find the square root of a number Next students learn how to solve simple equations that include taking a square root This makes them fully ready to study the Pythagorean Theorem and apply it The Pythagorean Theorem is introduced in the lesson by that name Students learn to verify that a triangle is a right triangle by checking if it fulfills the Pythagorean Theorem They apply their knowledge about square roots and solving equations to solve for an unknown side in a right triangle when two of the sides are given Next students solve a variety of geometric and real life problems that require the Pythagorean Theorem This theorem is extremely important in many practical situations Students should show their work for these word problems to include the equation that results from applying the Pythagorean Theorem to the problem and its solution There are literally hundreds of proofs for the Pythagorean Theorem In this workbook we present one easy proof based on geometry not algebra As an exercise students are asked to supply the steps of reasoning to another geometric proof of the theorem and for those interested the lesson also provides an Internet link that has even more proofs of this theorem     Looking for Pythagoras ,2004 Contains a complete eighth grade mathematics curriculum with connections to other subject areas     The Pythagorean Proposition Elisha Scott Loomis,1968
