Pedhazur, Liora Pedhazur Schmelkin, 2013-04-15 In textbooks and courses in statistics substantive and measurement issues are rarely if at all considered Similarly textbooks and courses in measurement virtually ignore design and analytic questions and research design textbooks and courses pay little attention to analytic and measurement issues This fragmentary approach fosters a lack of appreciation of the interrelations and interdependencies among the various aspects of the research endeavor Pedhazur and Schmelkin's goal is to help readers become proficient in these aspects of research and their interrelationships and to use that information in a more integrated manner The authors offer extensive commentaries on inputs and outputs of computer programs in the context of the topics presented Both the organization of the book and the style of presentation allow for much flexibility in choice sequence and degree of sophistication with which topics are dealt S-PLUS 2000 User's Guide, 1999 Handbook of Psychology and Diabetes Clare Bradley, 1994 This Handbook fulfils a pressing need within the area of psychological measurement in diabetes research and practice by providing access to material which has either been widely dispersed through the psychological and medical literature or has not previously been published Journal articles describing the psychometric development of scales have rarely included the scales themselves but this book includes copies of scales and a wealth of additional information from unpublished theses reports and recent manuscripts You will find information about the reliability validity scoring norms and use of the measures in previous research presented in one volume The Handbook is designed to help researchers and clinicians To select scales suitable for their purposes To administer and score the scales correctly To interpret the results appropriately Dr Clare Bradley is Reader in Health Psychology and Director of the Diabetes Research Group at Royal Holloway University of London Dr Bradley and her research group have designed developed and used a wide variety of measures of psychological processes and outcomes Many of these measures have been designed and developed specifically for people with diabetes Together with diabetes specific psychological measures developed by other researchers internationally these instruments have played an important part in facilitating patient centred approaches to diabetes research and clinical practice Handbook of Multilevel Analysis Jan De Leeuw, Erik Meijer, 2007-12-26 Multilevel analysis is the statistical analysis of hierarchically and non hierarchically nested data The simplest example is clustered data such as a sample of students clustered within schools Multilevel data are especially prevalent in the social and behavioral sciences and in the bio medical sciences The models used for this type of data are linear and nonlinear regression models that account for observed and unobserved heterogeneity at the various levels in the data This book presents the state of the art in multilevel analysis with an emphasis on more advanced topics These topics are discussed conceptually analyzed mathematically and illustrated by empirical examples The authors of the chapters are the leading experts in the field Given the omnipresence of multilevel data in the social behavioral and biomedical sciences this book is useful for empirical researchers in these fields Prior knowledge of multilevel analysis is not required but a basic knowledge of regression analysis asymptotic statistics and matrix algebra is assumed
