Power Exchange English Edition:

The Regulation of Power Exchanges in Europe Martha M. Roggenkamp, François Boisseleau, 2005 The liberalisation of the electricity sector has changed the way in which electricity is traded De facto or legal vertical monopolies are gradually abandoned and new participants have entered the market At the wholesale level one of the important developments is the establishment of organised electricity markets i e electricity power exchanges This book analyses the role and evaluates the impact of these new organised markets which until now received little attention The introduction provides an overview of the developments on EC level as this creates the legal environment within which power exchanges operate The implementation of the EC Electricity Directive has inter alia resulted in a commodization of electricity trading Thereupon the development of power pools and electricity exchanges is discussed as well as the products which can be traded Subsequently the development of the most important national and or regional exchanges in Europe will be examined National experts will analyse the role of power exchanges in the Nordic countries the United Kingdom the Netherlands Germany France Austria Spain and Italy The authors analyse the most important developments in their jurisdictions according to a fixed outline e g implementation of the EC Electricity Directive market structure emergence and functioning of the organised market products traded and the impact of cross border trade which allows for a comparative analysis and facilitates understanding Finally some conclusions with regard to the establishment of a single electricity market will be presented as well as some future developments

Investing in EU Energy Security Henrik Bjørnebye, 2010-01-01 La 4e de couverture indique Since the introduction a quarter century ago of market based investments in the production of electricity and other critical services our awareness of the underlying issues affecting the supply and consumption of energy has changed radically No longer can Europe or any region rely on over capacity of electricity generation and inexpensive primary energy fuels or disregard the signs of potentially catastrophic climate change The author of this timely and sharply focused book shows that in the light of our current knowledge ensuring new investments and the right investments in electricity generation constitutes an urgent energy policy challenge facing the EU over the coming decades He accordingly makes the case for a serious reconsideration of the market facilitation and market intervention rules under electricity market legislation in the EU In the first detailed legal analysis of the EU s internal electricity market framework for investments in electricity generation facilities from the perspective of security of supply this book cover such legal issues as the following in precise detail applicability of the Treaty on the Functioning of the European Union TFEU security of supply as a ground for exemption on the basis of public security justifications of public intervention the applicability of EU State aid provisions to investments in energy security requirements imposed by EU law on Member States for ensuring cost efficient investments in European supply security facilitation of renewable energy sources and cogeneration in the environmental interest the Court of Justice s approach to Member State interventions the Court s decisions on restrictions on free movement in the environmental interest Member States right to launch tendering procedures for new generation capacity Member States right to impose public service obligations in the general economic interest on certain undertakings and relationship between the provisions of the TFEU and those of the Euratom Treaty in relation to investments in nuclear power generation Throughout the study in addition to his analysis of the decisions of the Court of Justice and the Court of First Instance the author takes into account legal literature and Union reports preparatory works and working papers The book demonstrates convincingly that today s energy supply challenges must be based on a broader balancing of security competitiveness and sustainability interests It suggests that the internal electricity market provisions of the Electricity Directive and the Security of Electricity Supply Directive would benefit from focusing more intensely on requiring investments in technologies and primary energy sources that will help mitigate climate change and reduce European energy import dependency and less on the need for ensuring cost efficient investments through market based means Through its detailed analysis of EU law in an area of great significance to both market participants and the public sector Investing in EU Energy Security will be welcomed by legal advisors whether working for the EU electricity industry or public agencies

Models Benjamin F. Hobbs,Michael H. Rothkopf,Richard P. O'Neill,Hung-po Chao,2006-04-11 Over the years the electric power industry has been using optimization methods to help them solve the unit commitment problem The result has been savings of tens and perhaps hundreds of millions of dollars in fuel costs Things are changing however Optimization technology is improving and the industry is undergoing radical restructuring Consequently the role of commitment models is changing and the value of the improved solutions that better algorithms might yield is increasing The dual purpose of this book is to explore the technology and needs of the next generation of computer models for aiding unit commitment decisions Because of the unit commitment problem s size and complexity and because of the large economic benefits that could result from its improved solution considerable attention has been devoted to algorithm development in the book More systematic procedures based on a variety of widely researched algorithms have been proposed and tested These techniques have included dynamic programming branch and bound mixed integer programming MIP linear and network programming approaches and Benders decomposition methods among others Recently metaheuristic methods have been tested such as genetic programming and simulated annealing along with expert systems and neural networks Because electric markets are changing rapidly how UC models are solved and what purposes they serve need reconsideration Hence the book brings together people who understand the problem and people who know what improvements in algorithms are really possible The two fold result in The Next Generation of Electric Power Unit Commitment Models is an assessment of industry needs and new formulations and computational approaches that promise to make unit commitment models more responsive to those needs Out in the Country Mary L.
