Chapter 12: Completing and reporting on the audit

Review questions

12.13 What are the auditor's responsibilities for 'going concern'?

Going concern is an assumption that the entity will remain in business for the foreseeable future. The entity has neither the intention nor the need for liquidation, ceasing trading or seeking protection from creditors pursuant to laws or regulation. The going concern assumption supports the recording of assets and liabilities on the basis that the entity will be able to realise its assets and discharge its liabilities in the normal course of business. An auditor must consider the entity's ability to continue as a going concern as part of an audit (ASA 570 Going Concern).

ASA 570 (ISA 570) (Revised) requires that the auditor considers the appropriateness of management's use of the going concern assumption in the preparation of the financial report. Consideration of management's use of the going concern assumption is based on knowledge of conditions or events obtained through planning and performing the audit. The auditor considers whether their procedures identify conditions and events that, when considered in the aggregate, indicate there could be substantial doubt about the entity's ability to continue as a going concern.

They also consider whether there are material uncertainties about the entity's ability to continue as a going concern that need to be disclosed in the financial report. Usually, material uncertainties relate to an entity's inability to meet obligations as they become due without substantial disposals of assets outside the ordinary course of business, restructuring of debt or equity, or major operational improvements. ASA 570 (ISA 570) (Revised) has a new requirement for the auditor to also challenge the adequacy of disclosures for "close calls" in view of the applicable financial reporting framework when events or conditions are identified that may cast significant doubt on an entity's ability to continue as a going concern.

The going concern assumption does not apply to a financial report prepared on a liquidation basis. For example, when owners decide to dissolve the business or bankruptcy proceedings reach a point at which liquidation is probable, they prepare a financial report on a liquidation basis. When a financial report is not prepared on a going concern basis, that fact needs to be disclosed, together with the basis on which the financial report has been prepared and the reason the entity is not considered to be a going concern.
